Mrs. Ruth Judd May Relate New Story Of Crime

Expect Woman Held For Trunk Murders To Explain Conflicting Stories

PHOENIX ON EDGE FOR REVELATIONS

Prosecution Says Mrs. Judd's Story Will Be Smashed To Smithereens

By W. M. BISHOP
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 31.—Winnie Ruth Judd awoke in her private cell in the Maricopa county jail today, Hallowe'en, to face realities—to face the cold circumstantial facts surrounding her confessed slaying of Agnes Ann Leroi and Hedwig Samuelson.

And as County Attorney Lloyd Andrews and his assistants and Sheriff J. R. McFadden and his deputies gathered for their first conference and comparisons of evidence since this murder rocked Phoenix's social and civic foundations—Winnie Ruth Judd was expected to "break"—to tell and explain the mysterious phases of her trunk murders.

Led Glamorous Life

The belief she will look upon her crime through different eyes, is based, the officials say, upon the fact that today Sheriff McFadden said, "We are prepared to blow her story into smithereens."

She will be required to explain damaging facts disclosed to her to refute the scores of conflicting statements she has made in her several written confessions.

And as the story she is expected to tell about her spectacular career here—a career which brought her clandestinely into many lives and homes of Phoenix's "big business play boys"— there is a fearful anxiety among this populace which cannot be denied.

PA NEWC OBSERVES

Appearances along the sidewalk would indicate that people are turning their cats out—or somethin'. Down along East Washington street today Pa Newc counted five stray-looking kittens at different points, huddled in warm corners to escape the raw air.

When Boy Scouts decide to do a thing, they do it well. Downtown Troops 15 and 17, the two which volunteered to repair old toys for needy boys, have already commenced their task. The repaired and repainted toys will furnish plenty of glee for some youngster the morning following Santy's visit.

Armistice Day isn't so far away now, and many a school is taking advantage of all the early opportunity to work out an appropriate observance.

Tonight is Hallowe'en, and while there will be a large number of parties and local events in observance of the occasion, there will be no organized downtown celebration nor parade. Extra police will be on duty about the city to guard against damage by Hallowe'en revellers.

The Croton school band was having a parade all its own on the downtown streets on Friday afternoon.

Hunters who start out on Monday morning to inaugurate the small game hunting season should use ex-

Later, Pearson said, it was turned over to the Chinese committee for the maintenance of peace and order.

To Election Boards

Next Tuesday is election day.

City and county officials are to be elected.

The News is appreciative of the aid extended by the election boards in the city and county at the recent primary election, in making early returns of the result of the count in the precinct. Many of the boards gave splendid co-operation, and in this way aided in providing an early report of the election result.

It is the request of The News that the co-operation be extended again on next Tuesday night.

As soon as any final results are available for any city or county contest in the precinct, election board officials are asked to make them known at once to The News.

Call 4000.

Reminder is also given to all election boards that the law requires a report of the votes cast to be posted on the outside of the polling place, when the count is completed.

President Hoover's Knowledge Of Naval Affairs May Get Public Airing

GARDINER MUST SHOW CAUSES

Interest Centers Around "Jury" That Must Decide Upon Controversy

By GEORGE E. DURNO
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Battle lines were sharply drawn today as the knowledge of President Hoover concerning naval affairs and the integrity of the Navy League prepared to go on public trial.

Chief interest centered around the identities of the "jury" Mr. Hoover will designate to determine whether he is "abysmally ignorant" of the true state of America's sea forces, as charged by William H. Gardiner, president of the Navy League, or whether Gardiner has been guilty of spreading a "tissue of falsehoods" regarding the administration's economy program, as charged by the president.

Committee Picked.

It was expected the committee of inquiry would be completed today. The executive last night was scanning a roster of the Navy League's membership, from which he intends to pick a large portion of the group he confidently expects will make Gardiner modify his words concerning White House policies. New Reparations Plan For Germany Being Fostered

German Reparations Proposal Would Throw Young Plan Into Discard; Is Report

By EDWARD L. DEUSS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—An entirely new deal on reparations involving throwing the Young plan into the discard is the aim of German diplomacy, it was disclosed to International News Service today through authoritative sources.

It is for this reason that the foreign office so quickly issued a categorical denial early this week as Premier Laval of France left the United States of published reports that Germany intended to move at once for an extended moratorium under the Young plan with possible scaling down of reparation annuities in the offing.

Fruitful Results.

That course will be taken only as a last resort and if the conversations now in progress fail to achieve fruitful results.

In the first place the German government, International News Service was informed, desires to avoid taking the initiative. Responsible officials are determined to resist French pressure to that end though they fear that the United States, as a result of Premier Laval's conversations with President Hoover, is about to join her influence to that of France in this respect.

Steffens Forecasts Greater Boom Than Ever Before

By DAVIS P. SENTNER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The United States will recover and have a greater prosperity boom than before.

The overwhelming election victory of the conservative party in Great Britain is an expression of the present world-wide fear of the masses against the spectre of revolution.

The Manchurian situation and the German financial situation contain the possibilities of another international war.

The League of Nations, under the lobbying influence of France, is useless because it lacks sovereignty.

This quartet of opinions on the aspect of the 1931 world was registered today by Lincoln Steffens, noted author and veteran observer of the political, industrial and social machine, in an exclusive interview with International News Service.

"America will recover completely from this depression and undergo a more spectacular boom than before," said Steffens. "Financiers will attempt to regulate this new boom, but they will be unable to do it. The optimist will consider it a worse boom; the cheerful idiot will believe it to be a better boom.

"This talk you sometimes hear in Wall street about revolution in America is ridiculous. It could never happen here. There is never even a whisper of it out in the rest of the country, despite economic difficulties."

Ritchie's Boom For Presidency Has Commenced

Governor Albert C. Ritchie, Of Maryland, Speaks In New York City

IS MAKING TRIP THROUGH EAST

Enthusiastic Southerners Wants Meeting To Go On Record For Ritchie

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—"Governor Albert C. Ritchie's presidential aspirations gained impetus today following a political speech he made before the Southern Society of New York at the opening of its new home in the Waldorf-Astoria last night.

Nearly 1,000 guests, men and women, were present and they applauded the Democratic governor of Maryland enthusiastically. They also cheered Irvin S. Cobb when he stressed the fitness of Ritchie "for White House honors."

During the course of the program one enthusiastic southerner arose and advocated that the society go on record "for Ritchie for President." The chairman, however, sidetracked the suggestion although it was received with rather clamorous approval.

In Boston Today

Today Governor Ritchie is in Boston, where he will make three speeches, one in the morning, another at noon and the third in the evening. Tomorrow Ritchie will move from Massachusetts to Rhode Island where he will confer with Democratic leaders in Providence.

Political observers attached significance to the eastern swing" of Ritchie. It is hinted that powerful political forces in the Democratic party organization may back Governor Ritchie against Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt for the Presidential nomination. It is suggested that Ritchie's present trip may be for the purpose of consolidating his growing strength in the section of the east that formerly went strongly for former Governor Alfred E. Smith.

The local young man landed in Nicaragua on a Monday and the next day the earthquake came, wiping out thousands of lives and ruining the country.

Much of the time since then has been spent by the Navy men in doing aid and police work in Managua.

Although Christine has been quite ill with fever, he likes the work quite well. He has one more year to serve.

Bandit Killed In Philadelphia

Patrolman Finds Bandit Holding Up Restaurant And Fires Fatal Shot

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31.— An unidentified bandit brandishing a pistol as more than a score of patrons cowered in a restaurant here early today, was shot and almost instantly killed by a patrolman. The man fell at the feet of Cora Simon, a waitress, whom he had threatened only a moment before.

The patrolman, Edward J. Conner, came upon the scene as the bandit held the customers at bay after having rifled the pockets of the restaurant owners, Stratios Carlanganes, 39, and Thomas Bagenange, 45.

Conner's attention was attracted by Miss Simon frantically waving her arms. As the patrolman entered the restaurant the bandit leveled his pistol at him and fired, but the gun misfired and Conner whipped out his pistol, firing the fatal shot.

The dead bandit suspect was tentatively identified by car licenses found in his pocket as Charles La Rue of Gloucester, N. J.

President Issues Statement —Hoarded Money Is "Coming Back"

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Belief that the financial crisis in the United States probably has been passed was expressed by high officials today, as a result of a number of tendencies which were noted during the week.

Somewhat easier money conditions were indicated by the fact that the government was able to obtain about $60,000,000 in 90-day money at 2 1-3 percent compared with 2.69 percent on a similar issue a week ago. Subscriptions to the new issue, to be dated November 2, were oversubscribed by $100,000,000 more than was the other block of bills.

Comes now the golf club banquets when the members all appear, and listen to the speeches and some startling stuff they hear. They learn what expert golfing is, and how it should be played, but all the time they wonder how their weak shots should be made. But now the banquets bring to life a lot of cups and mugs, which same were won last summer by a lot of golfing bugs. A lot of cups and shiny bowls, and pitchers, balls and clubs to ease the pain of last year's play among the golfing dubs. Now comes the annual banquet time, with decorations gay, to tell the world how well they played, it's fifty one today.

Democrats Have High Hopes For Lowering Tariff

Democrats Have Hopes Of Revision Of Year-Old Republican Tariff Law

TRAGIC RESULTS ARE REVIEWED

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.— The Democratic party, with bright prospects of controlling legislation in the new congress, today appeared headed for a sweeping revision of the year-old Republican tariff law.

Denouncing the tariff as the "backbone of America's extreme economic isolation," Senator Cordell Hull (D) of Tennessee, proposed a three-fold program for restoring international prosperity.

He suggested a permanent world economic congress to eliminate unfair trade practices, economic wars, trade barriers, boycotts and discriminations; reciprocal commercial treaties to provide mutual tariff concessions between nations and complete revision of the American tariff law, with repeal of its flexible clause.

High Tariffs

Hull declared America's economic isolation, brought about by high tariffs, was the "biggest single underlying cause of the panic."

He reviewed what he termed the "tragic results upon world trade" of the American tariff wall, charging this nation with losing 240 billion dollars in commerce in the last eight years. He said a revision of the tariff would be the "greatest step in business recovery and in healthy gold redistribution" that could be taken by the United States.

HOOVER SEES GREAT CHANGE DURING WEEK

President Hoover, who saw in them signs of a "great change" for the better. He said:

"I am happy to note the very great change which is evident in the credit situation since the announcement of financial plans on October 7.

"Following the abandonment of the gold standard in England a wave of great apprehension spread over the country. Hoarding of currency rose to the high point of $200,000,000 a week between that time and the announcement of the credit pool and other credit measures. Country bank failures had risen to nearly 25 a day during this period. At the same time the drain of gold abroad due to the alarm of foreign holders of American credits had in this period risen to as high as over $200,000,000 a week.

Good Signs Pointed Out

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—President Hoover sees confidence conquering apprehension in money matters, so much so that he directed public attention to "the very great change" for the better.

Expressly happy, he pointed to these good signs:

"Small bank failures have almost ceased." . . .

"Increase in the price of wheat by 10 or 12 cents a bushel and cotton by $15 to $20 a bale." . . .

"It is no longer advantageous to ship gold abroad." . . .

"Not only has hoarding ceased, but actually $24,000,000 of hoarded money has returned to the banks."

The president was in a genial mood, his smile reflecting the optimism of the statement from which he read.

Although he held a typewrtten copy of what he intended to say, he departed from it often as he spoke to newspaper correspondends crowded about his desk.

tra precautions while in the woods to prevent starting fires and also to prevent accidents of any kind. Reports indicate that small game is quite abundant this year.

The temperature during the past 24 hours has been unusually constant, a variation of only five degrees being shown from Friday morning until this morning. The highest was 47 degrees and the lowest 42 degrees.

Hearing an airplane motor, Pa Newc looked out a window a few minutes before six o'clock Friday evening and saw a plane disappearing in the direction of the New Castle airport, west of the city. The sky was so dark that the outline of the airplane was hardly discernable but it carried a bright tail light and therefore could be seen for miles around. Not a very pleasant night for a ride—rain and mist.

C. A. Moorehouse of New Bedford, has grown a 6½ pound garden beet, which he brought to The News. He also brought a sample of red rasberries found in his garden.

It has reached that time of the year when car motors have a penchant for balking after they've been parked outdoors awhile. Last night's weather was favorable for such, and here and there Pa Newc saw several disgusted drivers doing their best to put up with spunky engines.

Four bold hunters they were—the quartet of youngsters that walked down North Mercer this morning. Each proudly carried a pop gun. Their looks told passersby they felt as secure as the Rock of Gibraltar.

And still you find plenty of curious folk about the newly-dedicated wartime cannon on the Diamond. But there's something to see, and we don't wonder why crowds inspect it. It's interesting alone to hear the comments of some rgarding war guns and war itself.

Politics, about in its final round for this year, got plenty of treatment from pedestrians downtown today. The general election comes Tuesday and little time remains for discussion.

Here's a real good one. Frank Grannis, West Grant street, reported the theft of his wagon night before last. It was found in the Caldwell garage. Someone suggested that the perpetrators of the joke thought it needed the bearings ground and the carbon removed from the valves.

Start Roll Call Armistice Day

Annual Red Cross Membership Campaign In County Will Get Under Way Soon

Plans are now going forward for the annual Red Cross Roll Call, which will get under way in Lawrence County on Wednesday, November 11, Armistice Day.

As has been customary in the past, chairman will be enlisted in the various districts in the country who will canvass their districts during the period between Armistice Day and Thanksgiving Day, when the campaign will end.

The largest portion of the money raised remains with the local chapter for the carrying on of relief work at home here.

Complete details of the program and the announcement of the general chairman of the campaign will be made at an early date, Ivor V. Davis, chairman of the Red Cross executive committee stated this morning.

Hearing is being held in court before Judge R. L. Hildebrand today on a petition of Sebastiano Costa, husband of Rosa Costa, of No. 2 West Lutton street, to have Mrs. Costa's son, Antonio Ippolito, take care of Mrs. Costa. Ippolito is a son by a former marriage.

According to petitioner he and his wife came from South America something over a year ago at the request of Ippolito. Costa says that he has been unable to get work, and that it is impossible for him to maintain his wife. He says the amount necessary is $36 per month.

In his answer Ippolito denies that he sent to South America for Mr. and Mrs. Costa. He says that when they arrived here he gave them rooms at his home, but later they left. He says that he is willing to support his mother, but believed that she has money which she received from the estate of her first husband who died in Italy. After hearing the testimony Judge Hildebrand made an order directing Ippolito to pay $25 per month toward the support of his mother.

GLEE CLUB HAS EVENING PARTY

A rollicking good time was enjoyed Friday evening by about seventy-five members of the Glee Club of George Washington Junior high school, when they gathered in the attic of the John W. Owens home on Winter avenue, with Miss Elizabeth Owens, their music instructor, as hostess.

As the young folks crept up the creaking stairway to the attic strange, wierd noises were heard issuing from above and when they got to the top they were confronted with ghosts, witches, black cats, owls and jack-o-lanterns, whose large eyes stared from the autumn leaves and corn stalks which filled the corners and hung from the ceiling.

Games and contests of a fascinating nature passed the time all too quickly and Virginia Wilson won a prize in the peanut hunt, with Katherine Hoover winning the treasure hunt. Beatrice Belnap won a prize for the best portrayal of costume.

Misses Helen Sankey and Elizabeth Glover assisted Miss Owens in entertaining the little folks and after the frolic all were served with a tasty Hallowe'en lunch.

WHY NOT CHANGE AUTO LICENSE YEAR?

WITH the annual rush for motor vehicle license renewals about to get under way in this state the Pennsylvania Motor Federation, today asked the question: Why not start the motor vehicle license year on July 1, instead of January 1?

Reasons being advanced from various sources in favor of the change were outlined in the following statement by S. Edward Gable, president of the federation:

"The annual motor vehicle license renewal season is upon us once again and, as usual, thousands of car owners are trying to figure out how to meet regular expenses, buy coal and winter clothing, put aside something for Christmas, give to the local Community Chest fund and, at the same time, pay for license registration without wrecking the bank account. At no time of the year is the strain on the family finances so great, and that in itself seems a most effective argument in favor of moving the license renewal date.

"It is pointed out that a July 1 renewal year would tend to minimize delays in renewing, and thus be of advantage to the state. The average car owner, those in favor of the change in registration date say, quite obviously would be more interested in getting his license on time in summer than at a season when winter storms often make driving a hardship. This would do away to a large extent, it is claimed, with the laying up each year of thousands of cars for periods ranging from several weeks to several months, through failure to renew licenses on time, and would mean that much more in gasoline tax for the states. It is also set forth by those in back of a July 1 renewal plan that issuing licenses on that date would bring the tag monies into the state treasury at a time when most needed, right at the start of the spring and summer highway construction season.

"From the viewpoint of the post office, it is claimed that a change in the license renewal year would help considerably to relieve congestion in the mails at the holiday season, as under the existing plan the bulk of the license plates in Pennsylvania are mailed to car owners in December, the busiest month of the year for the post office.

"An objection to the change is that the plates could not bear the calendar year date, as at present, but that could readily be overcome in designing the tags.

"While the Pennsylvania Motor Federation and its local clubs throughout the state have taken no official stand on the proposal, it would seem from the arguments advanced by proponents of the plan that the suggestion is worth consideration by the authorities in charge of issuing licenses."

ADVICE TO BACHELORS

Psychology continues to instruct and sometimes amuse us. Here is Dr. Robert Laird, who advises the young man in search of a soul mate to shun the "peppy party girl" and marry the "dull debutante." His classification is rather too general to be strictly accurate.

Are all debutantes dull or all vivacious young women devoid of solid qualities of mind and heart. Their trouble, we are told, is excessive activity of the thyroid gland. This simple physical explanation seems to leave something to be desired. We might more reasonably conclude that too much "pep" becomes wearying after a time and makes dullness an oasis in social intercourse.

The idea of a dull debutante is apparently derived from the "beautiful but dumb" theory—one which we doubt if any psychologist has ever fully tested. The antithesis between beauty and brains is as likely to be false as true. No doubt the possessor of beauty may feel that she has performed her entire duty by merely existing. But that is a dangerous delusion. It is charm which is the enduring attribute of woman. A plain girl may have this charm, while a pretty girl may not. In such a case the advantage may lie with the former.

Besides, what young man ever pays any attention to advice about girls, even if he is matrimonially inclined. If he is really attracted the faults are obscured by virtues that may or many not be superficial. The "peppy" girl will usually have a string of admirers. But of course there is the danger that she will be brilliant enough to make the young men seem dull.

THE MODERN SERVANT

Servants may come, and servants may go, for all the modern housewife cares.

The present-day housewife has a new kind of maid of all work on the job 24 hours a day, every day in the week, and every week in her life. This new servant to the busy mother never demands a day off, and her wages are within reach of every head of the home. The mistress of the mansion or of a cottage may summon this twentieth century domestic by the mere pressing of button, and presto! the work is started.

The name of this servant is Electricity.

The work-filled days of grandmother are now to be found only on the old-fashioned calendar marked by her weary hand. The reason the homemaker of this era can play matinee bridge, attend club meetings and devote all the time she desires to her children is because electricity generates the current of a new leisure in her life. Her life is no longer punctuated by back-breaking drudgery because of the invention of electrical appliances to make play out of housework.

Several vast enterprises and countless smaller ones are devoted to the invention and manufacture of electrical appliances to make housework easier. The American housewife is showing her gratitude by utilizing the results of their efforts. And the American home is better for it. At least, there are fewer tired wives awaiting the return of tired husbands.

The silver lining to all domestic clouds is pay day.

A man can do without any trouble, but he can't do much.

Some men are born leaders and others never can guess which way the crowd is going.

"A silent woman is a lovely thing," sings a poet. Perhaps; but it is hard to make women think so.

A Silent Quarrel
He Glared. He Hated. He Sulked
He Smiled

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Two who loved each other quarreled.

What about? It does not matter. They did not quarrel about anything, big or little, that you could pick up with a pincers and place beneath a glass and analyze. They quarreled because he was he and she was she, and on this day they couldn't Get Along.

He hadn't intended to fight. Neither had she. It just happened. She was tired. So was he. She said some little thing. Or she didn't listen when he was speaking. . . . At that instant something sweet turned sour, and a black fog blew in between them. One thing led to another. Weariness and irritation rolled up into a mighty ball and went crashing into the crevice that widened between them. They stood apart, far, far apart, and looked at one another.

They hated. He glared and she glared back at him. They saw each other as unfamiliar, disagreeable strangers, instinctively disliked. They thought things they did not say. If they had said them there would have been something between that neither could ever forgive. Something—some blessed decency, some saying reticence—kept them from putting those bitter thoughts into unforgettable, ever-echoing, indelible words. But they sneered, they fought, they made a miserable quarrel out of nothing—without saying a word. And then he rushed away and shut the door precisely and went into the bathroom and decided he might as well shave himself. So he did. He ran the hot water and lathered himself and sharpened a safety blade on the palm of his hand and went to work. . . . At first he muttered fiercely and made tremendous threats against life, confided in the grim face that stared out at him from the glass. . . . At first, that is . . . but slowly, sweetly, he began to forget. The hot water was so comfortable. The razor was so keen, his face so smooth. . . . Something within him began to purr. Life was transparent again. What was the use of fighting? Why had they fought? HAD they really fought? . . . He loved her. He'd always love her. She was fine, she was good, she was far better than an idiot like him deserved. What a fool he was—to quarrel over nothing.

He finished his shave and put on his shirt and tie again and walked back into the other room. . . . He looked down at her sheepishly and grinned. . . . She looked up at him and smiled. . . . Everything was all right again.

GETTING "BAD BREAKS"

If you can't engage in recreational sports without complaining of your bad luck and unfortunate breaks, keep out of them.

You may be a pretty good sort of a fellow in other ways and people may like you till they engage in a game with you.

Then you not only bore them but you detract from their enjoyment of their favorite pastime.

If the truth were told most of you mistakes, "bad breaks" as you call them, are due to your failure to do a certain thing correctly according to fundamental principles of the game.

You know the rudiments of the game.

But you won't concentrate sufficiently to play the game as it should be played to get a good score.

This being true why allow yourself to be wrought up to the state of being a disagreeable companion?

Then making alibis, is this one of your weaknesses?

Why should you expect everything to be favorable all the time?

Of course you do not speak of your very fortunate breaks.

Why not try to balance the favorable against the unfavorable?

We often wondered who started the custom of dressing a dead man in his best clothes and laying him out on a bed with the bed covers laid up to cover him. The number of persons injured was not less than 140,000,0000, bringing the total of killed and injured up to 202,000,000. Here are several reasons why the world has not yet become over-populated.

Railroad Decision Approved As Temporary Settlement

Favorable Comment Accompanied By Some Suggestions As To Future Provisions Which May Assist In Financial Gains For Roads

Acceptance by the country of the Interstate Commerce Commission's decision on the railroad application for 15 per cent increase in rates is accompanied by some predictions that further measures will be provided for the assistance of the roads. The increases provided on certain commodities and the pooling of these revenues, with resulting assistance to the weaker lines, are expected to produce an improvement in the condition of the industry. The rail executives' proposal that help be given in the form of loans also meets with much approval.

"The decision", as summarized by the LOUISVILLE COURIER-JOURNAL, "may be considered to presage a change of administrative policy on the part of the Commission whereby the members may be more liberal in future times of prosperity, when higher rates are not likely to cause so great a protest. Out of adversity, then, may emerge a great victory." The RUTLAND HERALD feels that the proposal "may result in stabilizing railroad securities and thus permit the employment of capital in railroad replacements, extensions or necessary equipment." The OKLAHOMA CITY TIMES assumes that "half a loaf is better than none," and sees "a long stride toward that unification of transportation systems which should make for greater efficiency and improved service."

"All in all, except in the suggested possibility of a later temporary increase in the rate on lumber, the decision is highly intelligent," in the opinion of the PORTLAND OREGON JOURNAL, and the OAKLAND TRIBUNE avers that "the proposal seems to be one designed to encourage the pooling of problems and possibly facilitate that consolidation in certain areas which has long been urged."

The SIOUX FALLS ARGUS-LEADER finds it "pleasant to note that the Commission gave some thought to the farmer's position," but adds that "he was entitled to even more consideration than he received." The OMAHA WORLD-HERALD testifies that agriculture is "relieved from any considerable share in the cost," and concludes that "it is perhaps as good a plan, in fairness to all parties concerned and to many in distress, as could be improvised."

The ST. LOUIS TIMES observes that "the commission seems to have met the request of the roads with a reasonable margin to spare, without acceding to the 15 per cent originally asked," and the WORCESTER TELEGRAM advises that "to cooperate in the pool would cost the prosperous roads nothing, and they would stand to share in what was left after the credit requirements of the indigent roads were taken care of." The LEXINGTON LEADER is convinced that "if these measures are worked out, the roads will find themselves in much better shape."

"The big thing about it is that it is out of the way," thinks the FORT WORTH STAR-TELEGRAM, pointing out that "the roads know what is ahead and they can begin to take such steps as may be advisable to solve their difficulties." The FORT WAYNE NEWS-SENTINEL estimates that "the proposed changes would not make more than a five per cent increase in the revenue of the roads taken as a whole," and that "there is some good ground for the belief that the decision constituted a compromise more favorable to the shippers generally than to the railroads." The NEW YORK TIMES states that, "summed up, the Commission has recognized the nature of the situation and has proposed a plan of at least partial relief."

The NEW YORK SUN says: "Even a patch will help until the return of prosperity makes it possible to give the roads what they really should have. If good times come back soon, the question of wage readjustment may be avoided." On the latter phase the CHICAGO DAILY NEWS comments: "Talk of wage reductions by the railroads, though natural, is only speculative. Such a step should be regarded by all concerned as only the last resort, to be avoided if humanly possible."

Commending the modification of the plan proposed by the railroad executives, the PHILADELPHIA EVENING BULLETIN offers the comment: "The startling feature of the Commission plan was the suggestion that the earning capacity of a sound, well-managed road might be taxed to bolster a weak road whose unfavorable position might well have been the fault of past managerial mistakes or improvidence. Whether or not this would be good law, it would be questionable policy and open to even more objection than the widely condemned attempt to build up a government fund from excess earnings of the prosperous to lend to the needy. Lending to weak roads of earnings of powerful carriers derived from rate increases not urgently needed by the latter to sustain their credit is a horse of another color. This would be devoid of the dangerous principles involved in the I. C. C. proposal, which, if adopted, might prove to be a camel's nose inserted under the tent of ultimate government ownership. The willingness of the railroads to search for means of acceptance of the I. C. C. plan with modifications is a happy postponement of resort to a wage policy that would have unfavorable reactions on buying power."

"The executives are wise in one thing. They will insist that the pool be administered by their organization and not by the government," declares the CHARLOTTE OBSERVER, while the need of further aid for the railroads is stressed by the CHATTANOOGA TIMES and COLUMBUS OHIO STATE JOURNAL. The CHICAGO TRIBUNE makes the protest: "The shippers will be taxed to keep alive railroads which never should have been built or which have outlived their usefulness or are badly managed. Many of these lines ought to be abandoned. The commission proposes keeping them alive at the expense of the public and of railroads which can survive if given a fair chance. The commission finds it easy to attack the argument of the railroads in behalf of the fifteen per cent increase, but as between that proposal and the finding of the commission the railroads have all the better of the argument. Their proposal, at any rate, would not have penalized the relatively useful lines for the sake of the relatively useless ones."

Just Folks

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE TWO SPIRITS

In each of us two souls there are,
And one is weak and one is strong,
And day by day along life's way
All men are torn 'twixt right and wrong;
Temptation is a subtle thing.
With varying lures it leads us on,
All roads it fares to set its snares,
But right must travel only one.

Some sneer at those to drink a prey,
Yet they themselves are sore beset.
The bravest men find moments when
Their finer instincts they forget.
For, tempted by the joy they crave
Of selfish gain or selfish pride,
They, too, will race to what is base
And push the struggling right aside.

For money some do shameful things
Within the precints of the law.
With no regard for bargains hard,
They'll fight for gain with tooth and claw.
Not all the failures to be fine
Are caused by open scarlet sin,
Men bitter grow, their power to show,
And sometimes break their word to win.

The right must struggle 'gainst the odds,
Temptation strikes with subtle skill,
And if the conscience merely nods,
Man's baser nature works its will.
In each of us two spirits dwell
And one is dark and one is fair,
And man must fight for what is right,
Or wrong will catch him unaware.

Activities Of Disabled Vets Are Compiled

Slogan Is "Service Of, By, And For Disabled Veterans Of World War."

FORGET-ME-NOTS TO BE SOLD NEXT WEEK

In connection with the annual Forget-Me-Not campaign, which will be inaugurated by the Fred L. Rentz Post, Disabled American Veterans here starting on Monday, Commander Robert Kerr of the Fred L. Rentz Post, states that the slogan of the D. A. V. is "Service of, by, and for Disabled Veterans."

Its one and only purpose is to protect and to advance the interests of the disabled ex-service men. It particularly strives to assist those veterans who do not know how to help themselves. This is accomplished through its legislative, rehabilitation, and liaison services, in co-operation with other service organizations and agencies.

The D. A. V. is the only organization composed exclusively of disabled American veterans; only those who were wounded, injured, gassed or disabled by reason of serving under Our Country's flag during the World War are eligible for membership. It maintains a national administrative office in Cincinnati, Ohio, from which it issues the finest ex-service men's publication, the National D. A. V. Semi-Monthly, giving detailed information to its members and all disabled veterans, relative to the complicated provisions of the law and of the regulations governing the administration of the Veterans Bureau. It maintains a legislative and rehabilitation committee office in Washington, D. C., with technical experts to present particularly difficult claims to the Council on Appeals and to the Director. It also maintains trained full time Liaison Officers in each of the Regional Offices of the Veterans Bureau throughout the country, and has part time volunteer service officers in every governmental hospital and in many of the larger cities throughout the nation. These service officers assist individual veterans in preparing affidavit evidence and in getting their claims prepared for proper adjudication by the Veterans Bureau Claims and Rating Boards.

How Tests Of Organs Are Made

Latest Developments In Medical Science Are Cited

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A complete medical examination 20 years ago was a comparatively simple affair. A recital of the symptoms, an examination by the doctor—looking, feeling, pounding and listening—to all regions of the body, a urinalysis, a simple blood examination and a record of blood pressure and that was all. Ten years ago the X-ray had come into its own and it was necessary to add an array of such photographic displays.

The latest development has been to bring in methods and machines from the physiological laboratory This has meant an entirely new viewpoint. Up to ten years ago most of our thought was bent upon determining whether there was any anatomical change in the body. Was there scare tissue in the lungs, was there a shriveled heart valve, were certain parts of the kidney destroyed, were there stones in the gallbladder? All these things are anatomical changes.

Physiology is the science of function—of the actions of organs. And function leaves no discernible anatomical change on an organ. A contraction wave passes across a muscle and when it is gone the muscle is the same as it was before. A gland in the stomach secretes a few drops of digestive fluid, and when it is finished the gland is to all sights and purposes the same as it was.

But for a real understanding of how a sick body is deranged the tests of function are more important than the tests of structure. The only purpose of our anatomy is to do something It is more important for your medical advisor to know how efficiently contraction wave pass over your muscles than it is to know whether there are small shreds of fibrous tissue in the muscles.

You cannot always tell how efficient a broken down Ford is when you see it standing idle in a garage. If you nave had a great deal of experience you may form a pretty shrewd guess, but the Ford may fool even experts. It may pant and rattle and throb and steam and shake as if the next beat of the cylinder were to be its last, and then suddenly it may pitch itself into action and travel its hundred miles and back on schedule time and be ready for another turn next day.

So with the old frame. Many a man has had a heart murmur which frightened his medical advisor into saying he would not live three months and yet he got around and done his work for years and years and even attended the doctor's obsequies. The anatomy of the heart was very bad, but it functioned very well.

So this new science of physiological, or functional, testing has great possibilities and is making considerable headway. Functional testing of the kidney was one of the first subjects to be put on a practice basis. We can now make functional tests of the liver, of the stomach and pancreas The chemistry of the blood shows us something of the way the elements of nutrition are being handled. Very exact methods of determining the rate of the muscular wave of the heart are constantly used. The general rate of activity of all tissues can be measused by the rate of oxygen consumption—basal metabolism. The brain, lungs, ductless glands, utilization of sugar and other matters can all be subjected to more or less accurate methods of measurement.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

M. M. S.: "1. Is chronic bronchitis a rare disease and what is the cause of it?

"2. Is the disease of a serious nature and can it ever be cured after a period of four years' time?

"3. Do the patients gradually lose weight and do they always have a temperature?"

Answer: Chronic bronchitis is a common disease. Strictly speaking, it is callled bronchtictasis, meaning a dilatation of the ends of the bronchial tubes. It is usually caused by a prolonged infection of the nose. It is not often permanently cured, but much can be done for relief. The symptoms of chronic bronchitis are similar to those resulting from a foreign body in the lungs or tuberculosis. The patients with chronic bronchitis usually lose weight, but do not always have a temperature.

Suit Is Brought To Quiet Title

Validity Of Universal Sand Company Lease On Gilkey Farm To Be Determined.

In a suit filed by Thomas A. Gilkey against the Universal Sand Company at court Friday, a rule is asked upon the sand company to bring an action of ejectment in order that a decision may be rendered, and Mr. Gilkey's title to the Piedmont farm on the New Castle-Beaver road cleared up.

The school board of North Beaver township issued an execution against J. O. and Edythe Rodgers former owners of the farm, for nonpayment of taxes. Gilkey bought the farm at Sheriff sale. The sand company claimed an interest in it by reason of a lease.

At former hearings it was shown that the sand company had failed to open up the sand, and it was claimed that the lease was therefore invalid. The present action is to determine whether or not the sand company has any right to enforce the terms of the lease.

Libel Suit Made Ready For Jury

Toledo's $50,000 Libel Suit Brought By Nan Britton, Nears Finish

CHARGE CHARACTER OF WOMAN DEFAMED

(International News Service)

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 31.—The $50,000 libel suit of Nan Britton against C. A. Klunk, Marion hotel owner, neared a jury today as the attorney for the complainant was ready to resume reading extracts from her book "The President's Daughter."

It was indicated that Miss Britton's lawyer, William F. Marsteller, may conclude presentation of his evidence Friday, paving the way for the final arguments. Marsteller yesterday afternoon began reading passages from a second edition of Miss Britton's book after the defense, led by Attorney Grant Mouser, had rested its case.

Miss Britton's complaint accuses Klunk of having sold copies of a book called "The Answer to 'The President's Daughter'" which, the woman alleges, defamed her character.

Minors Barred.

The proceedings yesterday were delayed by some five hours during which Federal Judge John M. Killits conferred with attorneys for both sides. When the trial was resumed the courtroom was filled with spectators despite Judge Killits' intimation that he might order private hearings. The onrush of spectators earlier in the day prompted the judge to order all minors barred from the courtroom. He instructed a court officer to eject all persons under 21 years of age, but no minors were discovered among the spectators.

*Miss Britton's attorney opened his case by reading from the introduction to the second edition of "The President's Daughter", where it was contended that the first edition was hampered by the seizure by New York police of plates and printed proof sheets. The plates and sheet were returned following a court hearing.

Crippled Youth Saved By Mother

Pittsburgh Crippled Youth Rescued From Flames By Heroism Of Mother

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 31.—A youthful cripple, who accidentally dropped a lighted match into a can of chemicals with which he was experimenting, today was recovering from slight burns and rejoicing in a narrow escape from death by virtue of his mother's heroism.

The youth, Douglas Jones, 24, was experimenting in the development of an anti-freeze motor mixture, he told police. While hunting a leaky gas connection in his apparatus, he dropped the match in a can containing crude oil and chemicals.

The chemicals blazed up around the youth, who was unable to flee. His mother, Mrs. Margaret Jones, 67, ran to his aid, dragged him from the house. She suffered slight burns on the hands and face.

She was the third person in the county granted a permit. More than 50 others were granted special licenses.

LIQUOR CAPACITY GALLON A DAY

WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 31.—John Hazlett, 63, on trial in Federal court today for possession of whisky, would not admit that Federal agents found whisky at his home, but conceded that if they did he had it for his own use as he could drink a gallon a day. His admission wrecked his case, for a jury found him guilty and Judge W. E. Baker sentenced him to serve three months in the Ohio county jail.

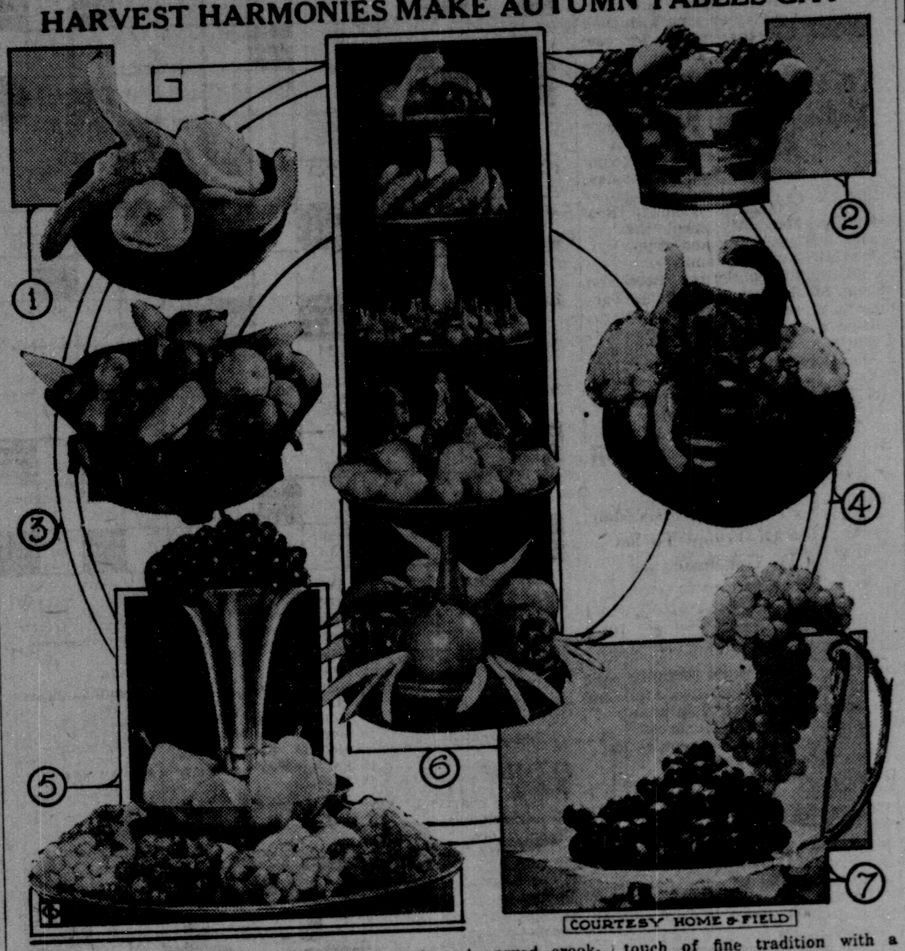
HARVEST HARMONIES MAKE AUTUMN TABLES GAY



COURTESY HOME & FIELD

We're all becoming color conscious these days. Formerly it was only the few artistic souls who recognized the delightful shades of common fruits and vegetables. Autumn tables are peculiarly favored by having many colorful harvest fruits, flowers and vegetables to make them gay. For instance, the white flat bush squash and curved crooknecks make a lovely gold and white composition, especially when laid in a sturdy oak chopping bowl, 1; the deep blue of grapes make a lovely contrast with peaches in the modern French bowl of deeply etched glass, 2; an old Louis Philippe basket of rosewood provides a touch of fine tradition with a medley of fruits, 3. For the informality of the country home, brilliantly colored vegetables are grouped in a black pottery bowl, 4; while formal and aristocratic arrangements of fruit and vegetables are pictured 5 and 6, and in 7, translucent green grapes droop over blue-black grapes.

Fess Is Likely To Stay On Job

Republicans Fail To Find Man To Take Party Chairmanship

FESS IS DESIROUS OF GIVING UP POST

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31. — The search for a new chairman of the Republican National Committee, which has been pursued industriously for months, has come to an unsuccessful conclusion.

Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, who reluctantly accepted the post when it was found necessary to displace Claudius Huston, will reluctantly continue in it until the convention next June.

"Of course," he said today, "with the selection of candidates a manager for the campaign must then take over.

The situation regarding the chairmanship, ordinarily a political plum for which there are many seekers, is unparalleled in party history. No one seems to want it.

Senator Fess frankly doesn't want the job. Party leaders frankly don't want him to have it. Yet conditions are such they cannot find a suitable successor, and under the circumstances there is nothing left for them to do but to continue the Ohioan in the job.

The chairmanship has been offered to a number of men in recent months, but in every instance the chosen candidate has turned it down. Henry M. Robinson, the Los Angeles banker who is one of President Hoover's closest personal friends, has resisted all sorts of pressure on him to accept the post. Ray Benjamin, another Californian, who does political scouting for the White House, has likewise insisted upon his own unavailability. It would not be surprising, however, if Robinson does not yet turn up as the director of Mr. Hoover's campaign next year.

Begin Plans To Release Bank Funds

Philadelphia Plan To Be Followed By Pittsburgh Institutions

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 31.—Banking circles in Pittsburgh today began preliminary discussion of the plan of Dr. William D. Gordon, State secretary of banking, to release part of the dozen deposits in closed State banks by means successfully utilized in Philadelphia.

The Gordon or Philadelphia plan includes three steps: 1—Immediate release of cash on hand in closed banks; 2—Centralized liquidation of slow assets; 3—Extension of credit to depositors by stores and business firms.

To avoid the technicalities of law, immediate cash is paid by a private banker appointed by the State Banking Department to serve without remuneration.

Plan Approved

Liquidation is conducted by a realization corporation, usually headed by prominent business men and financiers who are to direct the sale of slow assets on an efficient scale.

Under the plan, depositors will be enabled to obtain credit from department stores for that part of their deposits which the banking department can assure the stores it will be able to pay. The depositors assign their rights to that amount of their deposits upon which they have received credit and exchange these credit vouchers for merchandise.

Attorney General William A. Schader has approved the legality of the plan following its installation in Philadelphia.

On Educated People

A LIVIN' WAGE FOR EDUCATED PEOPLE

Professor Alex Tansey, who resigned as principal o' th' Apple Grove school t' become th' janitor o' Bristle Ridge school t' git an overcoat, addressed th' Chamber o' Commerce, last night, an' urged a livin' wage fer educated people. "Fer," said th' Professor, "if neither school teachers or those they educate are t' be paid livin' expenses why th' schoolhouse?" Th' Professor said too many of us take up school teachin' t' make a little pin money. "Look in on any school teachers' convention! Seventy-five per cent o' th' teachers you see'll be married before th' year is out. They haint adopted teachin' as a profission, but as a steppin' stone. Th' other twenty-five per cent may hang on fer life thro' bein' less favored as t' looks er fer other reasons. But they'll allus feel sour an' resentful. Our teachers are teachin' temporarily an' anythin' that's done temporarily, haint done very good. Take th' case o' Elmer Moots, who resumed teachin' when th' O. K. livery stable burned an' resigned when th' Acme Garage opened up. A sterlin' educator wuz lost t' th' community because he seen a chance t' lift himself up. He only taught school as a last resort.

Look at Wilbur Mopps! He wuz th' principal of Slaty Holler school an' ran off with a circus. Let us make teachin' attractive so our boys an' girls 'll take it up as a profession on th' same plane with hod carryin' barberin', plumbin', paper hangin' chaufferin' an' other profitable callin's. An' let us open th' door o' opportunity t' educated people! Look at Winsor Kale! Winsor Kale graduated from Apple Grove school with th' highest honors. Fer lack o' something better he drove a dressed poultry wagon in Toledo, Ohio. He went t' college with his earnin's. Then he cleaned wall paper fer a spell. Then he applied his savin's t' attendin' another college. Then he became th' agent fer th' Excelsior Rubber Collars. Then another term in college an' so on till he'd earned his way thro' four colleges. T'day he's an authority on bee culture without a peer in his chosen profession of an overcoat. He's not makin' half as much as he did with his 1914 pre-war chicken wagon job. He don't make a third as much as carpenter Joe Spry, who quits work in th' middle o' th' afternoon an' don't even know who Lincoln wuz, much less Lafayette an' others. Ther must be some premium on education or folks 'll quit monkeyin' with it. No wonder so many professors have their own ideas about th' distribution o' wealth in this country. No wonder some of our professors and teachers have advanced ideas. Anybuddy that's tried t' keep dressed up on nothin' knows what school teachin' is."

"A feller washed my car th' other day that'd won th' standin' broad jump at Harvard," remarked Tell Binkley, t' a friend at th' close o' th' meetin'.

Hoover Throws Down Gauntlet, Will Fight Accusations On Navy

Statement By Will H. Gardiner, Causes President To Become Incensed

Secretary Adams May Resign Office Due To Controversy Kicked Up By League

By GEORGE E. DURNO
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The irritation that the navy has been causing President Hoover developed into a full-fledged rash Friday.

Results may be far-reaching. It might even come to pass that Charles Francis Adams will resign as secretary of the navy.

Certainly the president has thrown down the gauntlet for a finish fight through the news columns of the nation's press over relative merits of a "big" or "little" navy.

In an almost unprecedented statement, Mr. Hoover was on record as demanding a public apology from William H. Gardiner, president of the Navy league, for saying he was "abysmally ignorant" about naval affairs.

May Call Admirals.

A presidential commission is to be appointed to prove that Gardiner was uttering "untruths and distortions of fact" when he attacked the White House for trying to "reduce and to starve the United States navy." According to the Hoover pronouncement, even members of the Navy league will be members of the absolving commission.

That some of the navy's admirals would be called upon to testify in behalf of the White House appeared probable, and at the same time it seemed certain they would be placed in an embarrassing position if summoned. All of them are reputed to agree with the Navy league's program for large sea defense. At the same time the president is their commander-in-chief.

The executive, in issuing this demand for personal satisfaction from the navy's chief public champion, was making good his threat of several weeks ago to "carry to the public" his fight against those who have been conducting a "newspaper backfire" at his efforts to reduce the naval budget by $61,000,000.

Refuses to Apologize.

Gardiner was quick to accept the challenge. Refusing—by virtue of the language of his counter statement—to proffer the demanded apology, the Navy league head expressed surprise the president should appoint a commissoin to delve into the merits of the situation.

The president was busy today determining the personnel of his naval commission. Meanwhile, his secretary, Theodore G. Joslin, issued a supplemental blast at the Navy league president.

"The object of this inquiry,' said Joslin, "is, first to call attention of the country and members of the league to the tissues of falsehood that have been spread by Mr. Gardiner, and second, to show the true purpose of these falsehoods and the people who are interested in propagandizing them."

Gardiner revealed later that the executive committee of the league will meet shortly to consider the various phases of the incident. Neither he nor Secretary of the Navy Adams would comment.

LOOKING BACK

IN NEW CASTLE

Reformed Presbyterians have been worshiping in this district for more than a hundred years. As early as 1825, a little band of "Society People" or "Covenanters" met in houses in the district. In 1834, the Rev. James Blackwood became their pastor or spiritual overseer in connection with the pastorate of neighboring similar organizations. In 1852, shortly after the death of Rev. Mr. Blackwood, the Rev. Thomas Hanna became their pastor and continued as such for a period of nine years. In 1863, the Rev. J. Calvin Smith became their pastor. In 1871, while under the pastoral care of Rev. Mr. Smith, they were organized into a separate congregation, the exact date being January 9, 1871. The membership at that time was forty-one. The Rev. S. J. Crowe D. D., was installed as the first pastor of the new and independent organization in 1872 and resigned in 1881. Rev. J. M. Wylie, D. D., was installed in 1883 and resigned in 1887. He began with a membership of 101 and when he left the membership was 109. Rev. W. R. Laird was installed in 1888 and left in 1892, leaving a membership of 131. Rev. J. S. Martin was ordained and installed as pastor in 1893. Under his leadership, the membership increased very materially. In 1900, a new $25,000 church building was erected, having a seating capacity of 400. The Rev. E. A. Crooks, D. D., is the present pastor of the church, which is doing a wonderful work in the religious life of the community.

Pledging Season Opens At College

Five Fraternities And Six Sororities Are Bidding For Memberships

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Oct. 31.—Fraternity and sorority "rushing" season at Westminster College ended Thursday at noon, "silent" period lasted from Thursday until noon today, and pledging takes place this afternoon.

The freshman class, 236 strong, will find five fraternities and six sororities bidding for membership. Fraternity and sorority presidents turned in "bids" to the college office on Thursday. Prof. Ben Euwema, head of the department of English, acted as referee for sorority bidding and Dr. E. B. Russell, assistant dean, acted as referee for fraternity bidding.

Members of the freshman class were given bid cards bearing the names of all Greek-letter groups. According to the "closed" method of bidding, each freshman was to indicate his choice of organization in order of preference. The faculty referee then made up lists for each fraternity and sorority showing what members of the class had accepted "bids."

In all probability, fraternities and sororities will pledge their members formally in services this evening. Pledge buttons of some groups, however, were given out immediately after silent period ended at noon today.

The present economic system needed overhauling, he declared. The same morale which wins wars, he asserted, was needed to achieve a peace-time victory over adverse conditions.

Motorman Foils Plans Of Bandit

Charleroi Motorman Drives Car Through Barricade, Bandit Is Believed Injured

(International News Service)

CHARLEROI, Pa., Oct. 31.—Motorman Dan Testy, 43, of Charleroi, Friday foiled an attempted holdup of his street car when he sent the vehicle ploughing through a barricade of stones and wooden beams erected by a lone bandit.

The scene of the attempted holdup was near Eldora Park. The bandit was believed to have been injured by the rear trucks of the car as they crashed into the boulders on the tracks.

Slowing his car, the motorman said the front trucks ploughed through the barricade but the car stopped when the rear trucks were held fast. The bandit, lurking near the car tracks, pulled the rear trolley from the wire, plunging the car in darkness.

Testy, undaunted, released the front trolley pole and sped away, the rear trucks crashing through the stone and wood.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 31.—The Post Office Department plans to spend approximately $1,460 in New Castle for extra help during the Christmas rush season.

Of the amount allotted to New Castle, $769.60 will be paid to extra clerks and $692.90 to additional carriers while a small incidental amount will be expended for extra laborers. This extra help will be paid on the basis of sixty-five cents an hour with the exception of laborers, who will receive forty-five cents per hour.

No estimate as to the possible number of persons who will receive temporary employment in New New Castle as a result of this added expenditure is available since the postmaster has been instructed to distribute the work among the greatest number possible. Some will probably be hired for a few hours only while others will work the entire season of ten days.

It is the purpose of the Post Office Department to make these spare-time jobs available wherever possible to unemployed men and women. Postmasters throughout the country have been asked to make the most thorough inquiry to verify statements submitted by applicants as to their need of employment and their fitness for work in handling the mails.

Unemployed heads of families will have the preference when competent. It is expected that few women will be hired because of the strenuous nature of the work.

While temporary employees will be given work without regard for Civil Srvice rules and regulations, under an executive order from President Hoover, persons whose names appear on the Civil Service register, who meet the requirement as to unemployment and fitness, be selected for temporary work.

The season will start December 13, according to the Department.

Stadtfeld Named To Succeed Drew

Governor Pinchot Appoints Judge Stadtfeld Of Pittsburgh, To Superior Bench

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 31.—Judge Joseph Stadtfeld, of Allegheny county common pleas court, was named to the superior court to succeed Judge James B. Drew, it was announced at the office of county commissioner Charles C. McGovern here.

The appointment, it was announced, was made by Gov. Gifford Pinchot in Harrisburg early this afternoon.

Judge Stadtfeld is a former president of the Allegheny county bar association. In the recent primary election he was defeated for the Republican nomination for a full-length term on the common pleas bench. Judge Stadtfeld was appointed to the bench by former Gov. John S. Fisher.

Judge Drew, whom Stadtfeld succeeds, was appointed to the state supreme court by Governor Pinchot several months ago and won the Republican nomination for a full term in the September primary.

Two Hundred At Party Last Night

Senior League Party Great Success—Splendid Program Is Presented

Two hundred local young people in masquerade costumes took part in the merry Hallowe'en party sponsored by the senior Epworth League of the Mahoning Methodist church.

The party, undoubtedly the most unique and delightful held this season in all New Castle, took place in the basement of the church. The crowd gathered shortly after 8 o'clock and a long to be remembered evening was commenced.

Part of the basement was rigged up with electric fans, dripping water in the dark, wet, clammy posts and was called "The Cave of the Winds." And in this very effective background there was a coffin in which a make-believe "corpse" was lying. Ghosts flitted about and the Hallowe'eners tramped alternatively on crackers and springs. It was a spooky trip, through the Cave of the Winds.

An excellent program was presented as follows, and was greatly appreciated by the large crowd in attendance:

Bells of St. Mary's, played by Guy Davis, of Wampum.

Devils Den, a dialogue, by Black and Jenkins.

Dance, by June Anderson.

Duet, by Florence Mauck and W. Greyson Coates.

Quartet of "colored" singers, Lawrence Weaver, Ott Rischel, Leroy Messner and William Emerick.

Rag doll act, Black and Jenkins.

Lunatic Lullaby, Black and Jenkins.

Acrobatic stunt, Lawrence Weaver, Ott Rischel, Leroy Messner and William Emerick.

Another feature of the evening was the grand march for prizes. Those who won prizes for the excellence to their masquerade costumes were Jack Waddell, Gertrude Moore, Ellen Wylie, Wilma McCann, Beverly Jean Hamilton, Janice Arbel.

Later a lunch of sandwiches, doughnuts and apples was served, concluding a perfect party.

Observations In 7th Ward

Pumpkins and owls adorn the windows of one of the Mahoning school classrooms, in observance of today, Hallowe'en.

The drinking fountain at the corner of Wabash avenue and North Liberty street has assumed the appearance of a watering trough. The bowl has stopped up and the water has filled it to the brim. Thirsty individuals who don't care to lap it up with their tongues, must dip their hand to the wrist in order to turn on the spigot.

On East Cherry street yesterday afternoon, automobile with official license 1236. Right near it was car with Florida license. Cars with Florida licenses are foolish to be in dear old Pa., at this time of year. Speaking of license plates, did you know that a preacher at one time offered to give a sermon with Greyson Coates' car license for the subject? The license is PD37, if we remember rightly.

The large police dog behind the McWilliams place on North Liberty street has just been presented with a new dog house. A dog living across the street, by the way, has a house equipped with a chimney! Sparky and Prince, well known local dogs, had another bad fight the other day. And John McMillin's dog at Hickory Creek lodge eats sauerkraut!

Flowers are still in bloom on the city park, North Liberty street and Darlington avenue.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH

West Madison avenue. Rev. W. W. Sniff, pastor. Bible school at 9:45 a. m. in charge of the superintendent, E. A. Jones. Morning service at 10:45. Pastor's sermon theme—"The Call and the Response." Sons Of Veterans Hold Masquerade

Interesting Affair Is Held Friday Evening In Organization's Hall

Annual Hallowe'en party of Oscar L. Jackson Camp No. 249, Sons of Union Veterans, held Friday evening in the Sons of Union Veterans Hall in the city building, was a decidedly successful affair.

Many of those in attendance were in costume and the array of costumes was excellent and unusually interesting. The ladies prize for the best costume went to Mrs. Percy Ashton, while the prize for men in costume went to Clare Book.

There were a number of visitors present from Baldwin Camp and Auxiliary of Youngstown, among this number being Mr. and Mrs. Fred R. House, the Misses Sarah and Elizabeth Orr, and Messrs. Orr, Kirkland and Thayer.

Much of the evening was spent with dancing as the chief diversion. Music was furnished by the Sons of Union Veterans Orchestra directed by Charles Brickner.

The committee in charge of this very successful affair consisted of Frank Schetrom, chairman, Charles Schetrom, Walter Cross, Neal Williams and George Partington.

REPUBLICANS, ATTENTION!

There is a circular being mailed and distributed over our County by Messrs Crawford and Woods, Independent candidates for County Commissioner, which contains incorrect statements evidently for the purpose of misleading the voters and obtaining their votes at the coming election. In order that the voters may have the true facts at hand the Republican County Committee makes this statement which can be verified upon investigation.

Relative to the Act of 1929, providing that the County Commissioners maintain a Veterans' Grave Registration Record of Lawrence County, it appears upon investigation that this Act is of comparatively recent date, being enacted on April 18, 1929. It provides that the Department of Military Affairs shall furnish the County Commissioners with the record blanks to be used in obtaining the required information for the Registration Record. These blank forms were not received by the Commissioners until about the middle of April 1931.

The Act provides that these blanks shall be furnished to cemetery and soldier organizations for the purpose of compiling this information. Such blanks have been sent out by the Commissioners. Obviously this would take considerable time, and the Commissioners have not received this information. The Commissioners' Office is supplied with all the necessary books and blanks, but no record can be made until this information has been received and compiled. The Commissioners have done everything they can do up to date. As to furnishing the grave markers, they have been furnished, or are being furnished in all cases where applications have been made.

We also note an attack upon the Eakin family. There is no intimation that the services rendered by and the record of the Eakin family have been improper or the basis of corruption. The whole argument, if it be an argument, is based upon the alleged danger of too many members of one family in public life. A review of the presence of the Crawford family in public life,—a continuous service of over forty years and a combined service of over fifty years, would suggest inconsistency on the part of Mr. Crawford in raising this question. No question is raised by the Independent candidates as to honorable service of the Eakin family, and we raise no question as to the honorable service of the Crawford family, but from the standpoint of time the Eakin family has a long time to go yet to equal the time of the Crawford family.

The voters of this County, no doubt, have noticed the intense activity of C. H. Milholland in the camp of the Independent candidates. We are not surprised at his presence in that camp or at his activities. Under the former Board of County Commissioners, from 1923 to 1927, he was County Engineer. During that period he received from the County the sum of $53,752.67. During the last four years, T. A. Gilkey has been County Engineer and for three years and ten months Mr. Gilkey has received $17,080.15.

We do not blame Mr. Milholland for wishing again to get his feet into the trough. We submit however that the issue to be determined by the voters is, who shall be elected County Commissioners of Lawrence County, and not the selection of a county engineer or commissioner's clerk.

We urge the voters of this county to support the straight Republican Ticket. The candidates all are men of high character. They are worthy of your support. Vote the straight Republican Ticket.

W. A. Eakin, Chairman

POSTMASTER ASKS MOTORISTS' HELP

Postmaster Edwin W. Crawford would have the local post office's annual "Mail Early" campaign start early.

At any rate, he directed a plea to New Castle's automobile owners this morning in which he asked them to apply for 1932 license plates immediately. His plea comes as a result of a similar request from the state's department of highways.

Delay No Longer

It usually means a lot of confusion at the last minute for the applicants and our staff when owners delay writing to Harrisburg for their new tags, said Mr. Crawford. If the applications are mailed in now the capital office will handle them with dispatch and have them returned here in no time.

He reminded mailers here that the "overseas" holiday period of mailing commences about November 15, and in anticipation of an increased number of international parcel-post packages being mailed from that time up to the close of the holidays, he urged them to prepare their parcels early. He pointed out that little delays usually brings big disappointments to the recipients.

At the post office here anyone may inquire of the postmaster's office as to the weight limits, dimensions applicable, charges required, and the customs to be employed in mailing parcels.

Patrons were warned about "short-postaging" their foreign Christmas packages, because it only means a return of the package to the sender. Time becomes valuable in mailing gifts abroad.

Regarding Christmas seals and stickers, the postmaster pointed out that they must be kept off the address side of parcels. Any adhesive label or sticker of some charitable agency may be used.

No Job Plans Yet

No arrangements, it was said today, have been made for hiring the necessary force of extras for the holiday period. Authorities said applicants will find it useless to apply now as no schedule of extra jobs has been prepared.

Chase C. Gove, acting second assistant postmaster general at Washington, D. C., has sent instructions to postmasters concerning the Christmas mailing season.

PULASKI

One of the pleasant social events of the past week was that of Thursday evening when the members of Mrs. Charles Simpson's Class of the Methodist Sunday school were entertained by Mrs. Robert Stowe at her home assisted by Mrs. D. Pennsy Brakeman Has Back Broken

W. C. Tarr, Oil City, Breaks Back In Coupling Cars At Kiskiminetas Junction

(International News Service)

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Oct. 31.—W. C. Tarr of 503½ East Fourth street, Oil City, a brakeman for the Pennsylvania railroad, suffered a broken back Friday when he fell between two cars of a passenger train which he was "splitting" at the Kiskiminetas Junction yards of the railroad near here.

His condition was described as "satisfactory" by attaches at the Citizens General hospital here. Dr. R. C. Johnston, his physician, said he beleived Tarr would recover.

According to hospital attaches, Tarr was uncoupling two passenger cars yesterday morning as early commuters' trains were being made up. He had already unloosed the coupling pin and was climbing between the two cars when the engineer, apparently confused by signals, started the train.

Tarr fell between the two cars and across one of the rails, suffering a fractured vertebra. He was not struck by the cars.

Railroad employes rushed the injured man to the hospital.

MY NEW YORK

BY JAMES ASWELL

By Central Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Wide-eyed wanderings:

Why do I always feel silly in a surface car? Sillier, anyway. There is nothing to do in most of them except sit and study, as covertly as possible, the accounts of the long straw bench across the way—wondering the while whether you are as grotesque an animal as the New Yorkers sneaking stares at you.

Once I rode the entire stretch of Forty-second street, from East river to Tenth avenue, directly opposite the late Dr. Frank Crane, one of the most dignified men who ever lived. For no reason at all I was threatened all the way with an idiotic attack of giggles—a peculiarity which I believe I can disown except for occasions about five years apart.

For one thing, the surface cars of New York are undoubtedly the oldest vehicles outside the museums of the world. Visitors, my corps of observers tell me, seldom board them I lived here two years before I was inside one, and then I was sorry I hadn't brought my lunch. You feel invariably as though the horses were only unhitched last year and you wonder how the motorman stays awake.

Curiously enough, statistics indicate that these dilapidated slowpokes are more dangerous than the hurtling subway trains!

DIME STORE DOLLIES

The girls who wait on you in the ten-cent stores are taught to be suspicious. It's perfectly true that most crooks are cheap skates. As a result more eagled-eyed guardianship must be exercised over the trinkets of the dime store counters than over the pearls at Tiffany's. Exercised, too, in a rather startling way.

Next time you hand a 10-cent piece across the counter of one of those milling emporia, notice what happens. In most of them the girls must drop each coin resoundingly on the marble top of the cash register drawer. They are skilled and can spot a false ring before you know what they are doing.

If the piece is phoney, she will hand it back to you and demand a good one with a smile—provided, of course, you haven't been passing the gyps all over the store. In that case word will have preceded you. And you are likely to be embarrassed.

That quaint custom recalls the fact that many of the blind newsdealers of the town won't take paper Money. They have been stung too often. One of them, though, in Second avenue, claims to be able to differentiate between the feel of fives, tens, twenties and fifties. When he gets an alleged fifty, however, you may be sure he gives it a prolonged massage.

HOP, SKIP AND JUMP

Herald Square at 5:30 in the afternoon of a business day—the noisiest, most traffic-tangled and pedestrian-choked spot on earth. . . Fifth avenue at 6 o'clock Sunday morning—an endless perspective of gray serenity, while even the pigeons still sleep. . . . Incidentally, advertisers believe there is a "margin of congestion" which applies to busy corners—that, in other words, signs and displays lost their efficacy when the street is so mobbed people dont' have the time or the inclination to gaze. . . .

There is a plastic surgery free clinic for New York's poor, where vital loss of looks is remedied. . . . The 250 lights which spray the Statue of Liberty cost $500 a month to keep going. . . . Eagle feathers are sold in the Syrian quarter at almost every shop. . . . W. B. Seabrook, author of "The Magic Island," will live for months as a day laborer in Europe, gathering material for a new book on miracles and shrines.

In Central park the arrows near the reservoir mean: white arrows lead you of a two-hour walk; blue, 45 minutes; red, half an hour, and yellow, 20 minutes. . . . Window-washers for high buildings get a better life insurance break than the executives sitting at desks inside; the record non-fatal fall for one of them was 11 stories, to land in a sand pile. . . .

Rudy Vallee and Claudette Colbert lived in the same Manhattan apartment house for months, but did not meet until they worked on the same picture. . . . A flourishing business consists in supplying veritable birds' nests for use as movie props: one of the big concerns has a supply of habitats for orioles, wrens, woodcocks, thrush, meadow larks, scarlet tanagers, reed warblers, long-tailed tits, wagtail and weaver birds—yet production was held up two weeks on a recent picture because robins do not nest in California and it was necessary to send to the middle west.

TO THE VOTERS OF LAWRENCE COUNTY

Which one of the four candidates for the office of County Controller will you elect?

We believe that W. J. EROE, JR., is the best qualified and fitted for this office.

Do you know that regardless of his limited authority as third man on the Board of County Auditors.

Mr. Eroe found that in his opinion, much improvement can be made in the bookkeeping in the Commissioner's and County Treasurer's offices, and he alone of the three auditors was instrumental in calling to the attention of the County Commissioners, serious irregularities and oversights in the bookkeeping in these offices.

Mr. Eroe on at least one occasion, almost had to force the county commissioners to make restitution to avoid surcharge in a matter in which they proved to be at fault.

In his examination of the books of the various collectors and the Commissioner's office, Mr. Eroe discovered numerous instances where, in his opinion, county money was or was likely to be lost, squandered or foolishly expended, and in which it was beyond the scope of his duties and powers to interfere.

Mr. Eroe was the auditor who was instrumental in discovering and straightening out a serious tangle in the County Treasurer's office.

Do you know that at present the County Treasurer does not have to disclose where the county funds are deposited. Mr. Eroe believes that the public is entitled to know whether or not its money is safely kept and if elected, he will see to it that you do know.

We feel confident that you will decide that Mr. Eroe is the man for the office and that you will vote for and elect him next Tuesday.

Let your vote count for economy and efficiency.

Girl Reserves Will Start Jubilee Week With Vesper Service

All Girl Reserve Clubs Of Y. W. C. A. Will Join In Celebration

Girls Will Attend Service Sunday Evening At First Methodist

Sunday evening, November 1, a vesper service will be held by the entire group of Girl Reserves in New Castle. This service will mark the beginning of a week of celebration in honor of an organization which has been so vital to the youth of this generation. It will be the Golden jubilee in celebration.

All girls will have a definite part in the service, and it is hoped that it will bring inspiration to each one for greater living and the desire to develop into the finest person possible. The Girl Reserves "grow to be." If girls of today are to become leaders of tomorrow, their spiritual health cannot be neglected.

The Vesper service will be held at the First Methodist church, at 7:45. Girl Reserves are asked to be at the church no later than 7:10. The program is as follows:

Organ recital.
1. Canzona Amorosa, from A Day in Venice—Nevin.

3. Prize Song, from Die Meistersinger—Wagner.
Processional—Girl Reserves.

In explanation of the significance of this anniversary to be observed by the local Girl Reserves and all others of the nation, this morning those in charge at the local Y. W. C. A. stated:

"To celebrate a golden anniversary means that something worth while has been accomplished in this busy world, something that has lived for 50 years and has grown with the years. November 1 to 7, 1931 marks the fiftieth year of work with the younger girls in the Y. W. C. A. Long ago the needs and desires of the teen age girls were recognized and an attempt was made to meet them. As time has passed, customs, manners, and dress have changed, and it is expected that with these changes, individual needs and desires have become different. The Y. W. C. A. has been conscious of this and endeavored in every way possible to meet the differences. Consequently, today's programs for younger girls are not the same as those which worked so successfully in 1881. Girl Reserve programs take innumerable forms, all of which aim to help a girl to build up within herself standards of value for the living of a well balanced life. The keynote of all Girl Reserve programs is mental, physical and spiritual good health. The Girl Reserves of New Castle have shown by their choice of program a desire to develop and strengthen their own thinking, to become tolerant of the opinion of others and to grow in individuality. In the program of each club, there is evidence of the wish for meaningful worship. Devotionals and ceremonials have a definite place on every program."

"Guidance is an essential thing in any youth movement. Much of the work of the Girl Reserves is directed by women who are vitally interested in the welfare of girls and who have had experience which enables them to advise intelligently. The Girl Reserve Committee is responsible for making the resources of the Association available to girls between 12 and 18, and for the creation among adults of intelligent opinion on matters affecting youth. The committee is continually functioning by helping in city-wide projects and serving as resource to the advisers and workers in the Movement."

Mrs. William J. Caldwell is chairman of the Girl Reserve Committee in New Castle. Her committee is as follows: Mrs. Clayton Bannon, Mrs. F. L. Burton, Mrs. R. T. Conway, Mrs. J. D. Crawford, Mrs. R. A. Eckles, Mrs. I. M. Henley, Mrs. R. C. Lutz, Mrs. Jake Rentz, Mrs. E. C. Ruby, Mrs. O. J. Sheaffer, Mrs. C. E. Smith and Mrs. John Elliott.

Mrs. Henley, Mrs. Rentz and Mrs. Crawford have aided in making this church service possible. Their suggestions and advice have been valuable in planning the vesper program. The Girl Reserves who have helped are Martha Randles, Josephine Daino, Elizabeth Louers, and Anna Taylor.

POLICE ARREST DRIVER OF CAR

David Dicks Arrested After Two Accidents With Purloined Car

David Dicks 19, of 622 South Ray street, shortly before eleven o'clock this morning, according to the police took the car of Edward A. Frey from South Bever street, hit and damaged the car of W. J. Lennig, of 1110 East Washington street, on Moravia street, then proceeded to Washington street, going west to a point near Greenwood Avenue where the car he was driving turned turtle.

Not only had he stolen the car, according to the police, but he was driving without a driver's license and was very much under the influence of liquor, when taken into custody by Detective John Young and Officers John Moore and Ralph Criswell.

He is being held in the city jail pending a complete investigation and will be charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, the authorities state.

W. J. Lennig was enroute north on Moravia street at the P. and L. E. crossing south of the Engineering Works. Mr. Lennig had stopped to allow a truck loaded with coal to come out of George street onto Moravia street and while he was doing so, Dicks smashed into and damaged the rear of his car. Dicks kept on going and finally upset the car between Atlantic and Greenwood avenues on West Washington St. It was thought he might be injured as the car turned turtle, but he was not. He had been driving in a zig-zag fashion and at a considerable rate of speed prior to the final accident.

The call to the police was to the effect that there was a bad accident and motorcycle Officer Criswell hurried to the scene on his motorcycle. Detective Young and Officer Moore took over the car of Robert Kerr, the other police machines being out and also hurried to the scene.

MANY CHILDREN AT STORY HOUR

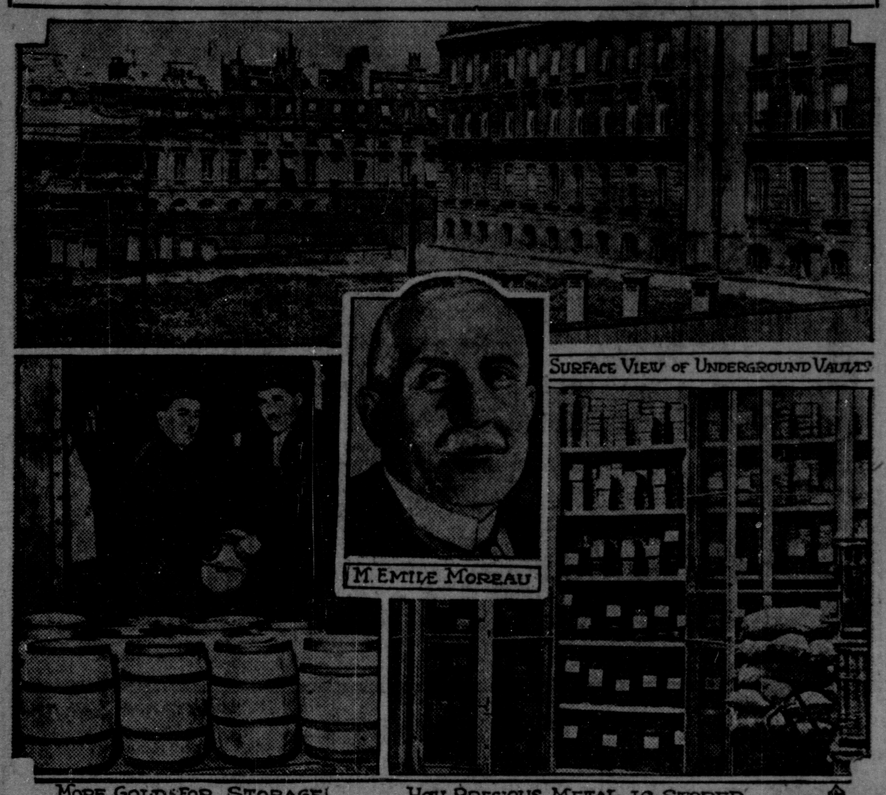
Steel, Rock, Water Guard French Gold

Banque de France Houses Nation's Supply of Precious Metal in Impregnable Vaults, Built to Withstand Ravages of Time, War and Revolution



SURFACE VIEW OF UNDERGROUND VAULTS

MORE GOLD FOR STORAGE | HOW PRECIOUS METAL IS STORED

Ninety-six feet below one of the busiest thoroughfares in Paris are the vaults in which the Banque de France keeps the nation's gold reserve. Fitted into a pocket hewn from solid rock, the vaults containing 30 per cent of the world's gold are considered absolutely impregnable. Officials of the Banque de France, of which Emile Moreau is the head, claim that in the event of war or revolution, the personnel of the bank could retire to the vaults and hold out for several weeks. They are equipped for such an emergency with offices, kitchens, food and sleeping accommodations. The 96 feet of solid rock that tops the steel roof of the vaults is protection against shell fire or bombing in the event of war. Tunneling is also guarded against as there is a water jacket provided by a subterranean river, completely surrounding the treasure chest. Inside the vaults are thousands of gold ingots neatly stacked on steel shelves. Each ingot weighs 12 kilos (26.5 pounds) and is valued at $200,000. With the exception of the United States, France now holds the greater share of the world's gold and its stock is growing larger every day.

Dog Chases Bold Bandit As Owner Is Being Robbed

German Shepherd Dog Saves Gasoline-Barbecue Stand From Being Robbed

HIGHWAYMAN IS BELIEVED WOUNDED

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 31.—Leaping a four-foot counter in a gas station-barbecue stand in Ross township, a German Shepherd dog today forced a highwayman to flee after he attempted to rob James W. Wettach, 25, of Bellevue, owner of the establishment.

Wettach, a cousin of State Representative James Wettach, was alone when the bandit entered, drew a gun and ordered him to raise his hands. Instead of complying, Wettach dropped to the floor behind the counter. "Buddy Von Spindle," the dog, was asleep at the time. At the sound of Wettach's fall, the dog awoke, leaped the counter and made for the bandit.

The latter fled, jumped into an automobile and sped away. As he ran, Wettach seized a revolver and fired several shot at the robber. Wettach told police he believed he had wounded the highwayman.

MAJORITY RULE AND DAY-LIGHT SAVINGS

Editor News:

I notice a great deal of stress is being brought to bear on the voters by certain political parties by stating the fact that it has been history that the selection of the condidates for office are selected by the majority of the voters and therefore should be elected at the coming election.

I am a Republican and vote the Republican ticket, when in my estimation the party running for office are the right ones for that particular office otherwise I am not. But what I would like to know is if the majority select these men for office why is it that they do not respect the wishes of the majority, which we can prove if given a chance to vote on it, are eighty percent of the people of Lawrence County, by using the time that this eighty percent want used in our country in place of after being elected by this big majority they fulfill the wishes of the minority. I think it would be better to elect the men selected by the minority and they might fulfill the wishes of the majority and also be law abiding citizens.

Very truly

Rescue Mission Anniversary Week

Speakers Will Tell Of The Work Of The Mission In The Local Churches Sunday

The City Rescue Mission located at 17 South Mercer street, of which B. J. Watkins is superintendent, is celebrating the twenty first anniversary of its organization during the coming week.

The City Rescue Mission is the outstanding christian relief organization in New Castle. The depression has multiplied the necessity for such an institution. During the past year the mission has ministered to more people than in any previous year of its history.

The mission has a splendid plant, well equipped with shower baths in the basements, where all men are required to take a bath, after which they are furnished with a clean night gown and bed. Recently some double deck beds were secured which will enable the mission to house 54 men per night.

Various economies are practiced by the mission in an effort to promote a maximum amount of relief at the minimum cost. All necessary laundry work is done in the mission. The soup to feed the men, the cooking and janitor work is done by the men who are aided.

Some idea of the great work being accomplished by the mission may be gained from the following facts:

More than 350 families have been helped. A number of unemployed women traveling in search of work have been aided. One mother with two little girls one five years, the other six weeks old, were cared for in the mission for about two weeks.

From November 1, 1930 to October 27, 1931 (4 days short of the year) the work may be summarized as follows:

Mission services held	326
S. S. services	52
Sewing services by the mothers	28
Sewing services by the children	24
Church services held in the city	25
Funeral services held in the city	8
People who have accepted Christ	140
People prayed with in homes and hospitals	480
Meals furnished	13,285
Beds furnished	4,117
Free Baths	3,219
Calls and investigations	741
Donations	751
Garments given out	2,540
Pieces of furniture given out	175
Mattresses given out	25
Blankets or quilts	12
Baskets of Food	129

About $7500.00 is needed to meet the salaries with heat, light, insurance interest on mortgage, the operation of the truck in collecting clothing, food, papers and magazines. Such a budget is small in veiw of the effective work which the mission is doing. The christian people of New Castle can by their contributions make the continuance of this work possible. The verdict is in your hands.

The cause of the mission will be presented in the churches of the city Sunday by speakers.

Carloads Of Fans, Flying Ne-Ca-Hi's Colors, Off Early

Decorated Autos Bear Local Rooters To Turtle Creek Game Today

Taking with them reserve stores of cheering energy which they plan to turn loose at opportune moments during the New Castle-Turtle Creek grid game this afternoon, a delegation of enthusiastic Ne-Ca-Hi rooters boarded automobiles here about 10:30 o'clock this morning for the 65-mile trip to the Turtle Creek playing field.

A smaller crowd at the same time left for the game by rail. No special train was operated.

Most of the students and adults in the throng carried red and black ribbons while many cars were decked out in a flashy style. They left in a caravan and intended to travel most of the way together.

The group's noisy departure was indication enough that New Castle's warriors will not lack bleacher support when they face the Pittsburgh suburb's gridmen.

To the Voters of Lawrence County

In the recent primaries there were five candidates running against me for the Democratic nomination for County Commissioner and I won out in a close contest between Mr. T. C. Marshall, myself and the other Democratic candidates. Mr. Marshall was entitled by law to have his name on the ballot as the second Democratic nominee, but he immediately, of his own volition, withdrew as a candidate and at once filed his withdrawal so that the name of but one minority party nominee should appear on the ballot, and so that in all fairness to the Republican party, there should be no Democratic contest of their rightful two majority party positions on the Board. I appreciate highly the action of Mr. Marshall and the subsequent whole hearted support which he has given me. Furthermore, I wish to express my appreciation toward Mr. A. R. Turner, Mr. John Shaw and Mr. J. W. Bronson, my remaining primary rivals, for the hand and heart of "Miss Democracy". I thank them for their endorsement of me and for the good work which they have done and which they are now doing for me.

I have endeavored to call to your attention the issues which confronted me, but do not get the idea that I have overlooked such important issues as Good Roads, Unemployment Relief, Pymatuning Resevoir, Lake Erie-Ohio River Canal projects, and the Lawrence County Planning Commission, which commission to be composed of some fifty appointive representative citizens of the city and county serving without pay to the end that we may have drafted a comprehensive plan for present and future county highway and other development and improvement projects.

Politics has never entered into either my nomination or general election campaigns and it will not enter now. The controversy over Mr. Eakin, I believe you will agree, is no concern of mine. I have made no deal with Mr. Eakin over appointments on anything else and I have absolutely no connection with any office seekers that are out working or pretending to work for me. I positively have no connection with any other candidate for this office, though naturally in the different sections of the county, my name may be coupled with that of the name of the other choice of the voter and for which he intends to work.

As to reforms, it has been called to my attention that things may not now be just what they should be in the office. If elected, I promise to make a thorough investigation of the conditions said to exist there and if any changes are needed, I will insist that they are made.

Respectfully yours,

Two Firemen At McKeesport Hurt

Falling Timbers Trap Firemen At Blaze In McKeesport, Pa., Early Today

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 31.—Trapped by falling timbers, two firemen were slightly injured today battling a blaze which broke out following a mysterious explosion in a vacant house in McKeesport, suburb. The house was destroyed and the neighborhood was aroused by the explosion, but property damage was comparatively slight.

The injured firemen, Captain Albert Watson and Hoseman Samuel Weimer, of engine company No. 2, were standing in a small creek in the rear of the building when a wall collapsed, burying them under blazing timbers. Weimer was knocked unconscious and Watson was burned slightly. Both were taken to McKeesport hospital, where they were given medical aid.

Police, who immediately began an investigation into the cause of the explosion, were informed the house had been vacated yesterday forenoon by a family which had occupied it since Tuesday. All trace of cause of the blast was destroyed by the fire, police said.

Girl Is Found, Not Kidnapped, But Young Bride

Miss Mary Lastoka, 19, Hunted By Monessen Police, Returns Blushing Bride

(International News Service)

MONESSEN, Pa., Oct. 31.—"No kidnapping—just an elopement."

That statement, from Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Valenson today solved the "abduction" of pretty Mary Lastoka, 19, of Monessen, which kept police of this and neighboring boroughs in a furore of activity for the greater part of a week.

The girl disappeared with Valenson, from in front of her home here last Saturday night.

Search launched for the couple failed to bring any clue to their abouts.

Then came the solution. Returning home to Bloomfield, where they will now live, the pair revealed they had eloped to Wellsburg, W. Va., where they were married.

Opposition of the girl's parents to her "keeping company" with Valenson was responsible for the elopement, the young couple said.

Eagles To Hold Open Meeting On Monday Evening

Thomas E. O'Donnell, Noted Speaker, Will Make The Address Of Evening

WILL TELL EAGLES EMPLOYMENT MOVE

Monday evening at eight o'clock New Castle Aerie, No. 455, Fraternal Order of Eagles, will hold an open meeting in the lodge room of the organization, the purpose of which will be to inform the people of this district of the latest move of the order to help conditions in this country. This is the introduction at the next session of Congress of a bill which it is hoped if approved will mean the stabilization of employment and prevent conditions such as exist at the present time in the future.

The speaker of the evening will be an old favorite of the local lodge, Thomas E. O'Donnell, of Kansas City, Mo., who comes as the official representative of the Grand Aerie of the Fraternal Order of Eagles. He comes with a different message this year, that of the effort to stabilize employment. In former years his message had to do with another great work of the Eagles, old age pensions.

He has traveled tens of thousands of miles in behalf of state-paid old age pensions, a humanitarian movement that the Eagles have championed for the past 10 years, and which is becoming more and more widespread throughout the United States.

In addition to the address of Mr. O'Donnell the committee in charge has arranged entertainment numbers of interest which will include four boxing bouts and other things of interest.

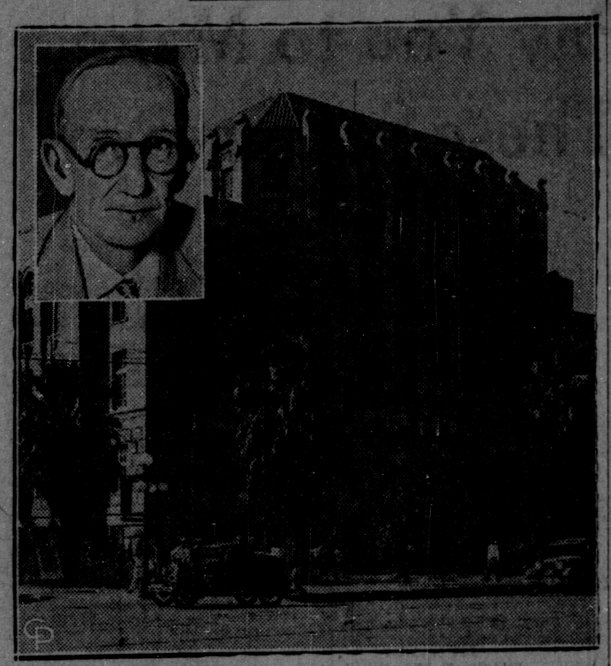
Mrs. Judd May Occupy Same Cell In Phoenix That Housed 'Gun Girl'



While such a statement is merely conjectural it is probable that Winnie Ruth Judd, the young lady who horrified the Pacific Coast with the murder of two of her friends, is being held in the same cell that quartered Irene Schroeder when the "Gun Girl" was held in Phoenix in January 1930.

The picture of the Maricopa County Court House, shown above, recalls the trip across the country for Irene and Dague rather vividly, especially for the New Castle officers who made the trip. They had expected to find a rather small court house and jail. Instead they found one of the prettiest buildings of its kind one could imagine.

The Maricopa County court house occupies nearly a whole square itself. Fringing the building is a wide lawn that runs around it, with a row of large palm trees around the edge. The stone used in the construction of the building is a pink sandstone, something like Georgian marble.

The pent house effect on the top of the building, is the jail. All a prisoner has to do to escape is jump down four stories to the ground. To reach the jail from the ground floor is a system of elevators that reminds you of a hotel.

At the time Irene and Dague were held in the jail in Phoenix, the natives of that city delighted the eastern visitors with tales of how tough they would treat a murderer, regardless of sex. In the arrest of Winnie Ruth Judd, along with her confession of the murder they now seem to be in position to prove some of their statements.

The man shown in the picture is Justice of the Peace C. E. Rice of Phoenix, who will preside over the preliminary hearing of Mrs. Judd.

Going Around In Washington

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31—One afternoon recently while Senator Borah was on his way to his office a friend rushed up to him and with considerable feeling held out a newspaper carrying large headlines announcing that the American observer to the League of Nations had been denied admission to a conference on the Manchurian crisis on the protest of the Japanese delegate.

"What do you think of that, Senator," the friend demanded, indignantly. "Seems to me this is pretty high-handed."

Borah read the story through calmly and then smilingly observed: "Japan is our friend. She is trying to save us from the League in spite of ourselves."

Borah is a leader of the irreconciliables who oppose American entrance in the League. He will lead the fight in the Senate this winter against American adherence to the World Court.

Senator David L. Walsh, from Massachusettes, has hit upon a novel method for working up interest in public meetings. It is Walsh's view that too often public speakers discuss topics that are not of immediate interest to his hearers. This summer while making a speaking tour of his state Walsh noticed that his audience responded with keen enjoyment to his invitation to ask questions on public issues. He decided to cut down his own remarks and let the crowd decide what it wanted to hear. The result was that everywhere he was gretted with scores of pertinent questions. At one gathering of businessmen he received more than fifty question relating to government control of business.

Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson, who represents the United States in China, is world authority on China. He is one of the few occidentals who has mostered the Chinese language. He reads, writes and speaks it readily. He is by inclination a student and scholar and the many years he spent in China as a young career diplomat Johnson devoted to learning the difficult language and studying the customs and history of the people and country.

His profound knowledge of China has been of great service to his country. For a number of years he was chief of the Far Eastern division of the State Department. When Ambassador Murray, his predecessor, resigned, President Hoover asked Johnson to take the difficult post. With India challenging Great Britain, Russia looming ever larger in the Far Eastern affairs, Japan restless and China in constant upheaval, the position is the most important in that field of diplomacy and one of the most difficult and trying in the American foreign service.

Johnson unhesitatingly responded to the President's call. The record of his two year's work in China amply justified the Presidents confidence and trust in him. He is widely respected in China and has the confidence of all factions. His friends attribute his sucess to his deep knowledge of Chinese nature. An example of his understanding of Chinese nature is cited by them in a little incident just before he left Washington for the Far East.

• • •

A friend called on him one day at the State Department. He had with him a toy airplane that he had bought as a gift for his little son. Johnson was much interested in the toy and made inquiries as to where it had been purchased. The friend knowing that Johnson was then still a bachelor inquired as to Johnson's interest.

"Well, you see Chinese are very keen about such things," Johnson explained. "I must take a few with me."

Several days later this friend had to buy another one because his son had accidentally broken the first. He went to the toy shop to make his purchase.

"I am awfully sorry," the sales girl told him, "Ambassador Johnson was in here yesterday and bought out entire stock of these airplanes He is taking them as gifts to Chinese friends."

"Jack" Halloran, wealthy Phoenix, Ariz., lumberman (above), is expected to prove an important witness in the now-famous "trunk case." Mrs. Ruth Judd, who surrended at Los Angeles, is charged with the crime.

Louisiana's President

A Louisiana farm boy, who worked his way through college, is to become head of the institution from which he was graduated, 10 years ago. He is Dr. James M. Smith, above, who is to be formally inaugurated president of Louisiana State university, at Baton Rouge, on Nov. 12. He is also an alumnus of Columbia.

Bandit "Eyes"

Cross-eyed bandits were plentiful in Kansas City until police reached out and arrested Fenton W. Wright (above), with his double lens eye-glasses with false eyes to create a cross-eyed effect. The glasses are a modern version of the old-fashioned mask which stage coach bandits used to wear as a disguise. Fenton confessed to several robberies, with his extra "eyes," police say.

Safely Elected

Former Provisional President Luis M. Sanchez Cerro of Peru (above) not only has just been permanently elected head of the Peruvian Government, but he has lived to experience such honor. President Cerro was congratulated, not only for his political victory, but for escaping bullets of enemies who fired upon his home from an automobile.

Bishop Must Stand Trial

Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South (right), with Bishop Samuel H. Hay, of San Antonio, President of the Ecumenical Conference, held at Atlanta, Ga., as the two church leaders participated in the meeting. Bishop Cannon has been indicted by the District of Columbia Grand Jury for violation of the Federal Corrupt Practices law during the 1928 Presidential campaign. Miss Ada L. Burroughs, of Richmond, Va., secretary-treasurer of the Bishop's anti-Smith campaign in Virginia, in 1928, was jointly indicted with Cannon.

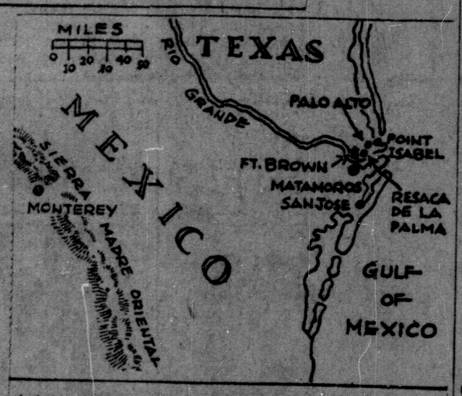
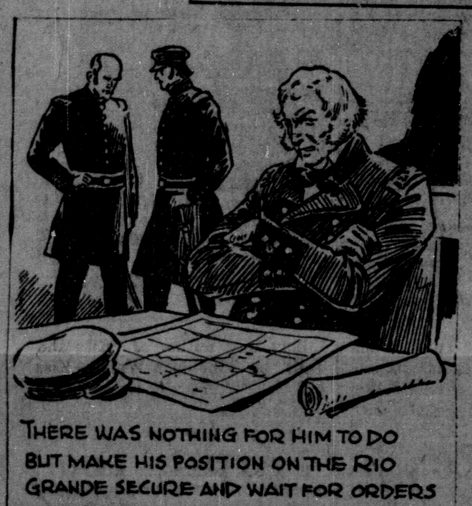
ON MAY 18, 1846, ZACHARY TAYLOR'S TROOPS CROSSED TO THE SOUTH BANK OF THE RIO GRANDE AND OCCUPIED THE TOWN OF MATAMOROS, WHICH THEY FOUND ABANDONED BY THE MEXICAN FORCES.



WITH MATAMOROS IN HIS POSSESSION AND ARISTA'S ARMY RETREATING TO THE SOUTH, THE WAY WAS CLEAR FOR TAYLOR TO ADVANCE INTO THE INTERIOR, BUT HE HAD TOO FEW MEN (NOW LESS THAN 3000) FOR SUCH A MOVEMENT.



THERE WAS NOTHING FOR HIM TO DO BUT MAKE HIS POSITION ON THE RIO GRANDE SECURE AND WAIT FOR ORDERS FROM WASHINGTON AND REINFORCEMENTS.

SOON MANY REGIMENTS OF VOLUNTEERS, HURRIEDLY RAISED AND ARMED, ARRIVED, BUT MOST OF THEM WERE WHOLLY UNTRAINED, AND TAYLOR HAD TO SPEND THE ENTIRE SUMMER DRILLING "ROOKIES."

Nickum Stars, Franklin Wins At Harrisville

Ben Franklin High Hands Harrisville High 13 To 6 Setback—Nickum Scores Twice

FIRST HALF IS HARD FOUGHT

Forced to fight an uphill fight when Harrisville tallied a touchdown in the opening quarter of the game, Ben Franklin High football team handed Harrisville a 13 to 6 setback Friday afternoon in a game played at Harrisville. A squad numbering 33 men made the trip to the Mercer county town.

The first touchdown of the game came soon after the kickoff, when Davis, the big husky Harrisville fullback raced 50-yards behind fine interference for the chalked stripe. It was the most spectacular run of the game. Franklin's fumble of the ball had given Harrisville the ball on the 45 yard line. Franklin was unable to get going in the first quarter and exchanged punts quite frequently.

The second quarter found the Franklin team showing a better offensive attack, but frequent fumbling kept them from scoring. The Franklin team was just a little too over-confident, and were trying to stand on their record. Franklin made eight first downs, four for Harrisville.

Nickum Is Star

Franklin High after a brief intermission and talk by Coach Gillaspie came back for the third quarter and opened up with an offensive drive that netted them many first downs and then Nickum the signal barker slipped around end for the first touchdown for Franklin. The try for extra point was stopped at the line. Franklin 6, Harrisville 6.

In the fourth quarter the Franklin team began another march to the goal line and with the ball on the 5-yard line and four downs to make the goal, the ball rested on the 6-inch line and Harrisville punted out of danger. Nickum took the Harrisville kick on the 35-yard line and raced to the 5-yard line before being stopped. Majocha went out of bounds for a yard, and on the next play Nickum slipped around end for the second Franklin touchdown. Majocha kicked the extra-point by a placement. The remainder of the game was played in midfield. Harrisville had a fighting team, Davis the fullback was the outstanding star. The entire Franklin High team played good football, with Nickum and Majocha holding the spotlight.

Franklin High is playing again today, tackling the Ellwood City High Reserves.

Titans Plan Lawrence Co. Court Tourney

High School Basketball Contests Arranged For March

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Oct. 31.—The second annual Lawrence county class B high school basketball tournament will be held at Westminster College the week of March 9 to 13, Graduate Manager A. A. McDonald announced yesterday. The tourney will follow the Titan floor season finale March 8 with Grove City.

The Westminster athletic council was pleased with the reception given the tournament last year and feels that this year's eliminations will draw even larger crowds. While details of the tournament are worked out by principals of the several schools and a committee representing the class B high schools, college officials aid in a number of ways.

Bessemer high school flashed a consistent, strong team last year to win the tournament.

Urge Hunters To Avoid Shooting Small Sized Deer

Forty Pound Limit Was Set To Meet Hunters Halfway, Game Commissioner States

Although a weight limit of 40 pounds, with entrails removed, has been set for antlerless deer during the coming season, the game commission is hoping that hunters will prove their sportsmanship by making an honest effort to keep within the 60-pound weight limit which was prescribed during special deer seasons of previous years.

The 40-pound limit, according to Charles G. Stone, secretary of the game commission, was established primarily for the purpose of meeting the sportsmen half way.

Inasmuch as everyone knows the difficulty of judging the size and weight of a running deer, the commission is of the opinion that the reduction of the weight limit to 40 pounds will be more than ample protection for the hunter who is likely to misjudge his quarry. Mr. Stone believes that deer hunters for the most part will appreciate this attitude on the part of the board, and will do everything in their power to effect the killing of only such antlerless deer that are of good size and weight. If hunters concentrate on the larger animals there will be very few does weighing less than 50 and 60 pounds taken; also, fewer violations are likely to occur.

GREAT GRID TEAMS OF THE PAST

BY BILL RITT

NO. 5—THE RAMBLIN' WRECKER—1917

The Yellow Jackets of Georgia Tech had stung many a football opponent before but in 1917 Tech changed from a swarm of hornets, occasionally deadly, to a devastating cyclone and thus the now famous Golden Tornado was born.

Head football man at the Atlanta school that year was wily John Heisman, one of Penn's greatest gridiron prides. He brought to the southern school his tricky shift and a fine personality. From a group of seasoned grid campaigners and raw green ones he built one of the most formidable elevens the nation has ever seen.

In 1916 this aggregation was great. In 1917 they were magnificent.

* * *

Probably the brightest of Tech all-time stars was Everett Strupper, a 150-pound back who had everything. Though he was slightly deaf, Strupper played every game like a whirlwind. He was a superb ballhawk, sensing instantly just how far he had to leap to snare a pass and he could pass, block, kick and streak through a broken field like jagged lightning. And Strupper did not tire.

The other halfback was dusky Joe Guyon, from Carlisle, a brilliant blocker and an excellent ball carrier, the near-perfect product of two master coaches—Pop Warner and Heisman. He, too, could punt, pass or plunge.

Judy Harlan, just a kid, was a roaring line smasher. Bull Fincher was an All-American at guard. Pup Phillips, though his arches were broken, was a whirlwind center.

This aggregation, none of them able to enlist and play in the Big Game across the seas for various reasons, carried the war to those hapless elevens which scheduled games with Tech in that fateful war year of '17.

* * *

Wake Forest was the first to challenge the Tech terror. The Engineers roared to a 33-0 win, as an appetizer for the new season.

Furman went next, 25-0.

Down from the north rolled another invasion, as threatening to Dixie football as General Grant's blue-clad division were to the Confederacy. This band wore red and blue. Pennsylvania, Heisman's old school, had come to take the measure of Tech.

Penn came with a fine team, one that was to crush eastern competition.

In the first minute of play Strupper went around on a flank attack and flashed away for a touchdown. Disaster crashed upon the hapless northerners. When it was over, Tech had won, 41-0.

* * *

Davidson battled gamely but dropped, 32-10. Washington and Lee fell, 63-0. Against an old enemy, Vanderbilt, Tech opened up full blast and turned the game into an 83-0 holocaust.

Tulane was crushed 48-0. The Carlisle Indians, ghostly shadows of the red eleven which Seneca, Mount Pleasant, Bemus Pierce, Jim Thorpe and Guyon, himself, had made famous, weren't even a test. Tech won, 96-0.

Auburn, buried beneath a 68-7 score, closed the season.

Tech, the old Rambling Wreck of the affectionate song, had outgrown the title Yellow Jackets. From a strong team within the southland Tech had won its place in the national football picture. From now on—the Golden Tornado!

Out of My Way!

Joe La Mark, quarterback of the thus far undefeated gridiron team of New York University, New York, is looked upon as one of the best open field runners in the East. He is already being mentioned in some quarters as an All-American choice. That stiff arm looks as if it might "persuade" any tackler to stay away.

Sportsmen Are Asked To Avoid Starting Fires

Are Urged To Take Every Precaution During Coming Hunting Season

CARELESSNESS IS CAUSE OF MOST FIRES

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 31.—"The sportsman who protects the forest from fire," said George H. Wirt, chief of the bureau of forest protection, Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters, "does the greatest thing that can be done for the protection of game."

The first few days of the hunting season are frequently accompanied by forest fires. This year recent rains and the absence of frost have eliminated the danger of forest fires thus far. But all that is needed are several hot, windy days to make conditions right for forest fires to burn. The true sportsman never takes any chance with fire in any way from which a forest conflagration may start.

Every year in Pennsylvania many game animals and birds are killed by forest fires because of their homing instinct. Driven from their haunts by forest fire they return before the fire is completely extinguished. Often their feet and legs are injured and some become so severely burned on the body that they later die.

"Every hunter," said Mr. Wirt, "should be careful with matches, tobacco and camp fires, so that there may be no damage done to the home and food of the game or to the game itself. It is usually the unloaded gun that kills someone, and it is the careless use of fire that starts a forest fire.

Not Sportsmanship.

"A true sportsman will give his quarry at least a reasonable chance to save itself. Letting a forest fire get started or continue to burn is a sure sign, not of sportsmanship, but of a sport, and a poor sport at that. A state game official recently defined a sportsman as one who plays fair when he pursues the recreation of hunting and fishing or when dealing with his fellow men and their property.

"Fortunately, we have in Pennsylvania an army of hunters, the majority of whom may be classed as true sportsmen. But, unfortunately, a few individuals often undo the efforts of all the rest to protect the forests and game. Carelessly dropped matches or cigarettes and untended camp fires are the marks by which he may be known far and wide.

"When you read in the press of several hundred acres of woodland, where fire had been kept out for the last 20 years, suddenly burned over with considerable loss to standing timber and game animals and birds, you can be sure if a hunter is blamed he was a sport and not a sportsman.

"Among the most ardent supporters of conservation generally are the hunters of Pennsylvania who have constantly backed wise legislation and reasonable regulations for the protection of forests, fish and game. The great strides they have accomplished are indicated by the fact that Pennsylvania has a nation-wide reputation as a foremost game and forest state. But the premier position to which most of us feel Pennsylvania is entitled will never be attained until sportsmen themselves eliminate from their ranks the sports, the selfish game hogs and the 'fire fools' who somehow still continue to violate reasonable game laws and annually lay waste thousands of acres of Penn's Woods."

TEMPLE UPSETS WASH-JEFF 6-3

Catholic U. Takes 20 To 12 Victory Over Duquesne In Games Friday

Two upsets occurred in the football world last night, when Temple defeated the strong W. & J. team 6 to 3 in a battle at Philadelphia. The Owls were the most impressive looking team as they scored against the Presidents. The W. & J. team scored as the result of a field goal.

At Forbes Field Pittsburgh the Duquesne team suffered a 20 to 12 setback at the hands of Catholic University. The Dukes fully expected to win this game and had the eggs counted at supper time Friday, but by 10 p. m. had another guess coming. The Easterners looked good.

Tech And Irish Ready For Battle At Pitt Stadium

Notre Dame Is Picked To Win, But Carnegie Tech May Upset Apple Cart

GOOD GAME IS EXPECTED TODAY

By JIMMY CORCORAN
International News Service Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 31.—When the Irish and the Scotch exchange mean looks there usually is a pretty good football game. And that's what the prospect is for this afternoon when Notre Dame and Carnegie meet in the ninth combat between the two clubs. The early guess is that 45,000 will sit in at the Jamboree.

Now there are few Irish on the Notre Dame eleven, and fewer Scotch on the Pittsburgh assemblage, but this really doesn't make much difference. Those are the names they will endeavor to uphold when the going becomes a bit hectic around 1 o'clock Eastern Standard time.

Everyone around is picking Anderson's eleven to win—especially after what happened to the Pitt team from the other end of town at South Bend last Saturday. The followers of the kick back sport here say that since Notre Dame could level the Panthers the way it did then there isn't so much hope for Tech.

Dope Means Little

However, past performances or advance doping seldom means much when these two teams meet. For confirmation go back to 1926, when Carnegie swopped down on an unbeaten Rockne team, and won.

Another reminder that Notre Dame athletes always have before them is the terrible trimming the Carnegie club of 1928 gave the South Benders on Cartier Field. It was the first beating the Irish had suffered on their home lot in twenty-five years.

Everything points to a Notre Dame victory. "Hunk" Anderson has a flock of ambitious young jackrabbits for backfielding duties while he has two or three lines that should stand out there pretty well.

Carnegie is endeavoring to wiggle through a slightly off season as best it can. It isn't a weak combination by any means and is dangerous, but it hardly comes up to the teams that Judge Wally Steffen had here in 1924, 1926, 1927, 1928 and 1929. The Judge declares that he'll give Notre Dame a stiff battle and if he can do this the match should be interesting.

Don't Handicap Yourself

By neglecting to pay bills promptly you handicap yourself in several ways. Your family's purchasing power is curtailed; you are forced to pay spot cash for everything—you are unable to afford luxuries buyable out of income. Handicapped, too, in your own business standing—people lack confidence in you. Avoid these contingencies by making it a habit to pay bills by the tenth of the month or as agreed.

Frozen Assets

One of the best ways to hasten the return of prosperity is to turn our "frozen assets" into cash. Look around and see how many articles you have in your home which some one else could use. The baby buggy and bed which your child has outgrown, household furniture which is no longer needed, even outgrown clothing, all may be turned into cash through the medium of a classified ad.

NEW YORK STOCKS

All Sections Of Stock List Show Gains Today

By W. S. COUSINS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—All sections of the stock list moved into higher price levels in the week-end market.

The final spurt today was led by the Oils, which pushed forward in response to reports that drilling in East Texas would be suspended for fifteen days.

Railroad stocks were in good call at the outset, but profit taking gradually slowed up the advance in this section of the list.

Loews led the upturn in the amusement stocks and moved ahead 2 points, while Standard of New Jersey led the upturn in the Oils.

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The stock market continued to extend its rallying movement today, with U. S. Steel, American Can, and Allied Chemical strong spots in the industrial group. Oils were in heavy demand in the late trading with Standard of New Jersey and Houston leading all members of this list to higher levels. American Telephone and North American were moderately higher in the utility group. Rails were stopped dead after early firmness. Amusements were in active demand, with Loew's and Paramount setting the upward pace. Coppers were fractionally improved. Auburn ran up briskly in the motor section.

He X-rayed the victim, removed the open pin and now says Mr. Goldfish will live to tell of his experience.

Yale Professor Says Washington Set Best Example

Dr. Eugene Kahn, Says George Washington Set Better Example Than Thomas Edison

EDISON'S CAPACITY ONLY FOR INVENTION

By LEIGH MATTESON
International News Service Science Writer

Copyright, 1931, By International News Service

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 31.—George Washington set a much better example for humanity, especially young people, than did Thomas A. Edison, according to Dr. Eugene Kahn, sterling professor of psychiatry and mental hygiene at Yale university.

In an exclusive interview today, Dr. Kahn said that, in comparison with Washington, the late great inventor was "unemployed emotionally, spiritually and socially."

He said that Edison only had a capacity to "concentrate," while Washington had this capacity and, in addition, the capacity to live abundantly and beautifully."

"The capacity to concentrate, carried too far," said Dr. Kahn, "becomes merely a capacity to ignore all the important human things of life, a capacity to get lost in the woods and fail to see the forest for the trees.

Admires Washington.

"When I read a life of Washington, I admire the man and find his generous, fully developed spirit and outlook and his capacity for living his life refreshing and stimulating. When I look on the life of Edison, I merely wonder how a man could have spent a lifetime ignoring everything beautiful in life except physical research.

"People naturally overestimate the personality of Edison because his work has profited them in the form of mechanical conveniences. If we profit materialistically from a man we are not bound to admire him to the point of exaltation."

Dr. Kahn expressed some other pointed views about American mental customs. Some of his opinions are:

That children are natural liars and that consequently the George Washington cherry tree story recited to cure them of the habit, merely makes them ashamed of natural tendency.

That there is no such thing as an inferiority complex. People who act inferior are doing it with a strange sense of their superiority.

Lust For Superiority.

That everybody has a lust for superiority and that this has resulted in the appearance on many college faculties of "morons who would be much happier as football coaches."

That "altruism is a form of egoism, condoned only because it profits the majority."

Dr. Kahn was especially emphatic in his opposition to the Democratic contention that all men are created equal.

The only form of democracy possible is the democracy of materiality. Men may be insured by government against caste prejudice, starvation and political oppression.

"But only nature herself can provide men equal abilities, and nature seems to avoid any such monotony consistently throughout the biological field."

Consequently, Dr. Kahn contends that the "lust for culture" in this country, is "probably causing more unhappiness than any other custom."

THE PARENT PROBLEM

How Parents Can Aid Boy In Division

Avoid Speed Suggestions In Arithmetic—Dr. Myers

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Division Parental Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University.

Long division is about the hardest subject in arithmetic to learn or each. If your child has trouble with it you can help him.

First be sure he knows the simple multiplication facts up to and including the table of nines. Write down for him, all mixed up, the facts which he has not mastered as, 9 times 7 equal 63, 8 times 4 equal 32, 6 times 9 equal 54. Have him say them over and over to himself until he knows them. If there are many he is not very sure about let him attack, on one evening, only about five or eight of them.

Persuade him to study them with great care, so as not to make an error. Urge him never to try to complete an item like 6 times 5 equal until he is sure he knows it. Make him feel it no disgrace to look at the completed facts you have written down for him, and that the only thing to avoid is a wrong association. Make accuracy the goal.

Avoid speed suggestions. He will want to race and guess. Speed has been his curse. Don't merely tell him to work slowly and carefully. Make him feel that he has ample time, by your voice and gestures, even by the way you breathe. When he makes an error don't yell at him, don't sigh, don't even look disturbed. Very gently ask him to repeat the fact correctly as he looks at it on the page. If you find yourself growing one bit annoyed walk away and don't return until you are again a perfect master of yourself.

Next be sure he knows the 100 simple subtraction facts. Persuade him to study those he does not know, saying them over and over to himself, as "13 minus 4 equal 9," until he has memorized them. If it takes a week or two for such achievements, very well. It is absurd to have him waste his time on long division until he knows perfectly the simple basic multiplication and subtraction facts. Go one step further and make sure he has mastered hard subtraction so that he finds no difficulty in subtracting 2019 from 3017, for example, or 635 from 832.

In case you discover that the child cannot subtract well, don't scold him or betray feeling in the matter. Don't be guilty of delivering a speech upon the awful way he has been taught or on your surprise that he had not known these things long ago. Just proceed as calmly as if you were putting on your hat or overcoat or telling him about an interesting experience. Be very patient. It may take five or ten evenings to prepare the child for long division.

If you practice him in any problems of long division, in the meanwhile, choose short and easy ones, and slowly do several of them for him first, leaving all the work for him to examine again whenever he needs help.

I shall be glad to answer, in these columns, questions addressed to me in care of this paper, provided these questions seem to be of general interest.

If you have a question you would like to have answered personally, write me, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Two pamphlets by Dr. Myers may be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Garry C. Myers, in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Punishments and Rewards" and "Fear."

East Liverpool Woman Guilty

Jury Finds Wowan Guilty Of Stabbing Husband To Death At East Liverpool Home

(International News Service)

LISBON, Ohio, Oct. 31.—Mrs. Sophia Huckenstein, 42, of East Liverpool, today was found guilty of charges of manslaughter in connection with the fatal stabbing of her husband, John Huckenstein, 69, who was slain, police said, during an argument over a cigaret at their home.

The jury returned the verdict after 30 minutes of deliberation. Mrs. Huckenstein was immediately sentenced to 20 years at the Marysville reformatory by Judge W. F. Lones, who presided at the trial.

Admitting that she inflicted the fatal wounds on her husband, Mrs. Huckenstein maintained on the witness stand that the crime was committed in self-defense. She testified that her husband had struck her during the quarrel.

The quarrel started after Mrs. Huckenstein gave a cigaret to a neighbor boy, it was contended at the trial.

JAILED BECAUSE HE TRIED TO SEE GIRL WHILE ON PROBATION

DETROIT, Oct. 31.—Walter White, 25, has gone to prison for trying to see a girl he never saw, but with whom he struck up a speaking acquaintance via an air shaft when both were held in the county jail.

Genevieve Finney, 19, the girl, was charged with robbery, not armed. White was charged with assault with intent to rob. While in his cell White read of Miss Finney in the newspapers, and the speaking acquaintance followed. They agreed to meet if they obtained probation. Both did, but one of the terms was that White must not associate, or seek to associate, with any persons on probation.

White however, called at Miss Finney's home. Her father said she was away. Later White was arrested and his probation revoked because he tried to see the girl. He will serve from two to six years.

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations Of Interesting Things Around New Castle

This season when you begin talking football teams, you can't overlook Union township and Shenango township. A couple of years ago all they had was a few boys in uniforms, now they have teams that will soon have to step out of the class B ranks to get games if they continue improving.

Out at Union, Morgan Boyd started out quietly enough, saying little about himself or his possibilities. Last year he showed them a team that was better than the run of class B teams but this year he has developed a team that will take a lot of class A teams.

A tie with Ellwood City was the first indication that he had anything unusual and since then his charges have been piling through the opposition like duckpin balls down an alley.

Shenango township got started a little after Union township, and they too have a real team, hanging Mercer on their belt as one of the victims this season. To wind up the season Union and Shenango will battle it out between themselves and while Union looks to have a slight edge on Shenango, the game will be one that will be worth seeing.

The Judd case out in Phoenix, Arizona, now gives Maricopa county folks an opportunity to carry out their vaunted hard boiled justice they promised when Irene Schroeder was a guest of theirs.

The lady has one thing, however. The view from the Phoenix jail shows the loveliest palm trees around the court house, and down the street a ways is a restaurant where they feature chili con carne and hot tamales.

Getting out of the jail is rather difficult as the clink is on the top floor of the building
